FIND NO TRACE OF WRITER OF SUICIDE THREAT

Local Officers Follow Up Every Possible Clue In Investigation

Sheriff Fred A. Richardson today was investigating a report of tracing of automobile tracks to the waters edge along Rock river near the River road a short distance west of the Schuler cottage, said to have been discovered yesterday afternoon in an investigation into the supposed suicide note of a stranger who signed the initials, "I. J. D." This was the only clue which was traceable this morning, following the sending out of information to state highway police throughout northwest Illinois to be on the lookout for a model A Ford coach, which the stranger drove out of Dixon about 9 o'clock yesterday morning.

Evidence that the man had spent a great deal of time in formulating the mystery note left in his room at the Commodore hotel Wednesday night was found in the investigation late yesterday. His registering under the name of Frank J. Smith, with no home address, and signing the suicide note with the initials, "I. J. D." hampered the officers in obtaining information which might be useful in tracing him.

Wrote Several Notes
In the room which he occupied were found several torn bits of paper, which apparently had been taken from a small memorandum book, among many cigarette stubs, indicating that the writer had spent a great deal of time in formulating the note, which was written with lead pencil on both sides of the paper. Piecing together some of these torn bits of paper, one note reading, "spent Tuesday night at Commodore hotel in Dixon, left next morning," was added to the collection. The other pieces of paper, some bearing scribbled figures were torn into small pieces they cannot be pieced together.

A close checkup was being made on all roads connecting with the Lincoln Highway from Dixon to the Mississippi river in an effort to locate the Ford coach which might have been abandoned or wrecked in the event that the writer of the note did not change his mind after leaving Dixon. There is also some speculation that the writer may have scribbled the note with a view of frightening relatives or of attempting to cover up his actions from this point.

Information Broadcast
Sheriff Richardson sent a description of the stranger and a copy of the note to the state police throughout northwest Illinois yesterday afternoon. The note read: "I will never go back home. They may find me dead on the highway between here and Clinton. I hope they sell the car and give the money to Helen and Audrey Joy. I am tired of the whole affair and that's why I am doing this. Say good-bye to all my friends for me. There is only one thing that I am sorry for and that is to leave Helen and Audrey Joy. I. J. D."

Glenn Camery, proprietor of the Commodore hotel, stated this morning that the stranger had no baggage with him when he registered under the name of Frank J. Smith Tuesday night, and in response to an inquiry, stated that he had left all of his baggage in his automobile, which he had placed in the Barron & Carson garage. On leaving Wednesday morning, he placed no letters in the mail, but the condition of the writing table in the room which he occupied indicated that he had spent some time smoking, notes on small pieces of paper, which before leaving, he had torn up into very small bits.

Banker Says Paper Advertising Pays

Chicago, Mar. 31—(AP)—Melvin A. Straus, vice-president of the Straus National Bank, recommends keeping up advertising appropriations in newspapers as the best means of stimulating buying.

He said last night his bank would urge its patron firms to maintain normal advertising expenditures because hoarding of advertising money "is one of the most disturbing factors in business today."

"If business lacks confidence in itself, how can the public be expected to have any?" he inquired. "What business needs is self-confidence and public confidence, and advertising by the printed word can bring it."

During 1931 more than 100 national advertisers who increased their advertising gained in sales and profits, he said.

Funeral Of Carl Behl On Saturday

(Special Telegraph Service)
Franklin Grove, Mar. 31—The funeral of Carl Behl will be held Saturday afternoon at 2 o'clock from the Lorenzo Matern residence, with interment in the Franklin Grove cemetery. The popular young man, proprietor of a local hatchery, met instant death early Tuesday morning when he was struck by the east bound Los Angeles Limited in the North-Western yards, just east of the city limits.

New Lindberg Clue Leads To Philadelphia

Some Oddities In Wire News Today From Various Parts

HE'S NO SOLOMON
Detroit, March 31—(UP)—Judge Henry S. Sweeney tried futilely to emulate Solomon yesterday.

Miss Mattie Lillard claimed Jesse Binns' dog was hers. Said the Judge: "Let the dog decide."

"Here, Rex!" called Miss Lillard from a corner of the courtroom. The Spitz bounded to her wagging his tail.

"Here, Teddy," called Binns—and the dog ran to him.

"Well, well," ejaculated the puzzled Judge—whereupon the dog turned and dashed to the bench, affectionately lickin' His Honor's hand.

HIS CURTAIN CALL
Cleveland, O. Mar. 31—(UP)—A wave of applause swept over the audience as Justice of the Peace Sam J. George, 66, Elvira playwright-actor-jurist finishing a gag line, cast himself in a chair on the stage in mock slumber.

The rollicking comedy, "Smyme vs. Smith," was making a hit in the Lorain Avenue Masonic Temple.

As the applause subsided, fellow actors continued their dialogue. A cue line was spoken for the sleeping man. There was no response.

The leading man was dead!

WELL! DOG-GONE!
New Haven, Conn., March 31—(UP)—Rosa Ponselle, in New Haven for a concert, gave an exhibition of artistic temperament which had this town agog today.

Because the management of the leading hotel here refused to permit "Whiskers" her Irish terrier to dine with her in the main dining room, Miss Ponselle flounced out after delivering a lecture based upon her opinion of hotels and hotel managers who objected to dogs at the table.

The famous diva went from the hotel to Casey's luncheon across the street where, there being no rules against dogs, she and her pal were permitted to dine together.

WHY, OFFICER!
Aurora, Ill., March 31—(UP)—Policeman Donald F. Curran today the impact of a full-blown kiss and bewildered prisoner as evidence of his success as a female impersonator.

In the past month 30 women have been victimized by a nurse snatcher. Curran felt something should be done. So, bedecked in a trim hat and a stylish spring suit with a handbag dangling beside his skirt, Officer Curran set out at night to patrol the streets.

Then from behind a tree an assailant sprang upon Curran. They grappled fiercely and slowly the officer was pressed to the ground by his more powerful opponent.

"My skirt got in the way," Curran apologized. "Then this guy kissed me on the cheek. And did I yell!"

Reinforcements arrived and Curran was able to take to the station his prisoner, who was booked amidst sheepish looks as Lawrence Pannell, 40, a deaf mute.

POLICE REFUSE DISCUSSION OF NEW THEORIES

Norfolk Men Continue To Insist They're On Right Track

Philadelphia, Mar. 31—(UP)—Mrs. Katter C. Hancock, prominent club woman who says she was visited by a woman who believed she had a good clue to the kidnapped Lindbergh baby, said today the investigation being conducted by Philadelphia police might take a week or two.

Mrs. Hancock said she was not at liberty to give the name of the woman.

"She is certain from the actions of certain people she knows that the baby is in Philadelphia or nearby, at least. The detectives are running down her clues," she said. Kern Dodge, Director of the Department of Public Safety, said he did not care to discuss the information which the woman gave Mrs. Hancock.

NO CONNECTION
Hopewell, N. J., Mar. 31—(AP)—Colonel H. Norman Schwarzkopf, head of the New Jersey state police, said today in his morning bulletin from the home of Colonel Charles A. Lindbergh, that several children investigated yesterday in the search for the kidnapped Lindbergh baby were found to have no connection with the case.

ANOTHER AD
New York, March 31—(UP)—Another of the mysterious "Jafie" advertisements which have been published since the Lindbergh baby was kidnapped appeared in the New York American today.

This one, printed in capital letters in the "Public Notices" column, read:

"I accept. Money is ready. Jafie."

Previous messages signed by this name have mentioned money, and one of them expressed a desire to "see the goods" first. There has been nothing to connect them specifically with the Lindbergh kidnapping case, however.

MAINTAIN SECRECY

Norfolk, Va., Mar. 31—(AP)—Maintaining their secrecy concerning negotiations for the return of the kidnapped Lindbergh baby, the three intermediaries here are firm in their belief they have been in touch with the child's abductors, not with impostors.

Speakin' for himself and his two associates, Rear Admiral Guy H. Burgess said last night that "I wouldn't have gone into the case, and I wouldn't be in it now unless I was satisfied that we were dealing with the abductors of the Lindbergh baby."

This statement was made at the close of a conference during which the Admiral attempted to answer 15 questions previously prepared and submitted to him by the reporters.

To three of the questions, each dealing with the identification of the child for whose return negotiations are in progress, Admiral Burgess said only, "I am sure Col. Lindbergh will recognize his son when he sees him."

GRAND AUNT RETURNS
England, N. J., March 31—(UP)—A gray and dignified old lady, grand aunt of the kidnapped Lindbergh baby, returned home today to lay aside several trunks of oriental toys she had brought home for her infant nephew.

ASSESSORS OF LEE COUNTY TO MEET IN DIXON

"There is always a tendency on the part of those employees, asking them to support former Governor Len Small in the coming primary election, was made here last night by Attorney John Palmer Snigg of Springfield.

"I understand of course, you people employed by the State; and I am speaking to you over the heads of these people present; would you lose your jobs if you would come to meeting of this kind. But you have suffered patiently, through the coldness of the more than three years of the present administration. I believe it only natural that you in common with the great mass of the common people of Illinois, would turn from the coldness of the present regime to the human warmth of Len Small, a Governor who had a kindly consideration for the people employed by the State; whom you could get in to see if you had business to transact; who never went with hat and frock coat who always remained the same."

"May I say to you," Snigg continued, "that they may make you carry Custer tire covers on your automobiles. They can take a half a month's salary away from you for a colorless candidate that is a stranger to you; they can compel you to mail out campaign literature for him they can threaten and cajole you; but when you step into the ballot booth alone, as free born American citizens, you can vote for Len Small, and bring back to you the warmth of the past."

BOASTFUL GANG AVENGER MEETS WHAT HE ASKED

Shot To Death On K. C. Streets By Rivals He Defied

Kansas City, Mo., March 31—(UP)—An East St. Louis gangster, who, according to police, came here to avenge the slaying of a comrade a year ago, was shot to death on a busy street here today.

The dead man was identified by papers in his pockets as James O'Day, 40, East St. Louis, Ill.

O'Day was shot as he walked along Twelfth street, Kansas City's avenue of bookmaking establishments, gambling dens and speak-easies.

His slayers used a 12 gauge shotgun. Police found two empty shells, ejected from an automatic shotgun, in the street, where they had been thrown from the automobile which witnesses said was used by the executioners.

Gang sources informed detectives, they said, that O'Day had been a close friend of Jimmy Howard, liquor racketeer who was killed here a year ago. Howard was seeking to establish his liquor business in defiance of the organized syndicate, since broken up by federal agents, which was operating here.

A few days ago, police said, O'Day came to Kansas City and visited underworld haunts, openly proclaiming that he had come here with the single purpose of "bumping off Howard's slayers."

Last night, the reports said, O'Day became especially boastful. Finally, somewhat intoxicated, he (Continued on Page 2)

RIVER IS HIGH
The stage of water in Rock river at the Illinois Northern Utilities Company dam at the Ottawa avenue hydro plant was reported to have reached its crest today, after a rapid rise over the week-end.

The melting snow sent the river up many inches within a few hours and caused some trouble at the hydro plant. Some of the planks were washed from the dam and brush obstructed the race at the east end of the hydro plant, but this had been cleared away and there was no interruption in the service.

In the vicinity of Erie Rock river was reported to have threatened many acres of winter wheat in that section. No raise in the stage of water has been noted locally since noon Monday, although there has been no drop.

Stakes Too Great To Change Pilots

Portland, Maine, Mar. 31—(AP)—The declaration that the American people "can not desert" President Hoover "if they hope to recover an even keel when the tide of affairs shall turn" was made today by Raymond Fellows of Bangor, permanent chairman of the Republican state convention.

"We know of the unemployment, the low prices and all the other elements of depression in every country of the world. We also know that because of the prompt constructive measures of a republican administration the living conditions in America are better than elsewhere, and that they will steadily continue to improve."

GUNMAN, UNDER ARREST, KILLED ONE OF CAPTORS

Officers Overlooked An Automatic When Searching Him

Chicago, March 31—(UP)—Policeman James L. Kelly, Gary, Ind., was killed today, and two others were wounded, in a gun battle between two police officers and two prisoners they had just arrested.

The wounded are Milton Larson, Oak Park policeman, shot in the groin and thumb, and Richard Fredericks, one of the prisoners, shot in the breast.

Fredericks' companion, who was believed he fired the shot that killed the Gary policeman.

A confession said to have been obtained from three alleged bandits held in the Gary jail, brought Kelly to Oak Park seeking four other members of the same gang. Sergeant Walter Conboy and Patrolmen George Harms and Larson, were assigned to aid him.

Two of the quartet sought were found in a home on West Harrison street, Oak Park. They were identified as Thomas King and Roy Hushman, and were taken to jail. Kelly and Larson waited at the home, hoping to trap the other two.

Made No Struggle
Fredericks and a companion finally arrived. They were arrested without a struggle and the officers led them toward a patrol box. Fifty feet from the box, Fredericks' companion jerked away, drew a pistol and started firing.

One of his first shots dropped Kelly. Fredericks also started to run, but Larson wounded him before being shot himself.

The members of the gang held at Gary were said to have implicated themselves and four others in a score or more of holdups of loan company offices.

Fredericks, in a serious condition at a hospital, denied being a member of the gang, however.

Police Doubt Story
He named his companion a "Bud" Corbett. He said they met in an Oak Park speakeasy last night. Upon telling Corbett that he was a Joliet automobile mechanic, Fredericks said he was invited to go with him to Columbus, O., to get a job. Police doubted this part of his story.

Fredericks declared that when he went to Corbett's room he was given a pistol that Corbett took from him trunk.

When officers arrested the two men, a pistol was found on each, but the police overlooked an automatic pistol Corbett had on his person.

OFFICER HELD DURING PROBE OF WIFE'S END

Pathetic Note Found Indicates She May Have Suicided

Chicago, March 31—(UP)—Bernard Keating, 28, a South Park motorcycle policeman, was held today for further investigation of the death of his wife, Gertrude, 23, mother of three children.

Keating insisted that his wife, who was found shot to death in their home, committed suicide.

Detectives studied a pathetic note, addressed to "My Own Dearie Daddy," and signed, "Just your old girl, Gertrude," that was found in Keating's pocket. The note read, in part:

"I wonder, dear, if you ever did stop to think that you are all I have in the world. Surely I have my babies and family, but you are all that matters to me. Despite our squabbles and quarrels, I love you, and I will fight for you with every ounce of strength in my body with the help of God."

"You have been a good boy for four days, coming home early and sober, but you have been finding fault again. I probably wouldn't have noticed it if you had been drinking, but there is only one time when you act that way, and that is when you are not keeping your marriage vow."

"Now, Daddy, the only reason you would act like that, I suppose, is because you were with that same woman, and maybe that same affair is still going on. You must care a lot for her or you would not leave me home on your day off and go out with her."

Mrs. Keating, who was married at 16, was found in a room of their home, a police pistol at her side.

Keating admitted he had been out carousing. He said he and his wife quarreled when he returned and that he retired. As he was falling asleep, he heard the shot, he said.

Farmers Urged To Support Friends

At the primaries in April the farmers of Lee, Whiteside and DeKalb counties will be asked to vote to protect agriculture at the polls. Organized agriculture scored one of the greatest victories that has ever been scored by agriculture in the recent session of the legislature when the income tax bill was passed, after many years of effort. The passage of this bill was made possible by the downstate representatives and senators, who voted almost as a body to pass the bill, while Cook county members, with a single exception, were rated solidly against the bill. It was a case of men who had property such as farms and homes, ranged against men who had very little property, but a great deal of intangible property and income. They did not care to carry their share of the tax burden. Men in this district, Senator Wright, DeKalb; Rep. Collins, DeKalb; Rep. Devine of Lee county; and Rep. Allen of Whiteside, have shown their faith in agriculture the past two years and have voted and supported the income tax measures. Agriculture can pay these men back in only one way, and that is to go to the polls, and see that these men are re-elected to the legislature this coming election, and if we can return these men to the General Assembly, we will be assured of support for any measure that is for the good of agriculture interests in the next session.

Earl Smith in the March issue of the I. A. Record states, "property tax payers owe a debt to all members of the General Assembly who voted for this legislation. The I. A. knows of no better way to discharge that debt than to go en masse to the polls on primary day and on election day and use the full power of the ballot in voting for those members seeking reelection who have stood by and with the property taxpayers of Illinois."

—Lee County Farmer, March 15, 1932.

STOCK TRADING TAXES BOOSTED BY VOTE TODAY

Levy On Transactions On Exchange Are More Than Doubled

BULLETIN
Washington, March 31—(AP)—An amendment to put a tax of five cents on each $100 sale on the grain, cotton and produce exchange was offered in the House today by Acting Chairman Crisp of the Ways and Means committee.

Washington, March 31—(UP)—The House today approved a tax schedule which would more than double the levy on stock market transactions.

A tax of 1/4 of one per cent on the selling price was written into the billion dollar tax bill over the objection of the Nek York delegation. The provision specifies the tax to be not less than four cents a share.

The tax under present law is two cents.

The vote was 207 to 39.

On the basis of a $17,000,000,000 business expected on the exchange this year, the tax would raise between $65,000,000 and $75,000,000 for the budget-balancing program.

The new tax was part of the Democratic-Republican coalition plan. It was the last big remaining feature of the substitute schedule for the sales tax. Other main items of the program already have been adopted. Only minor details remain to be acted upon.

To Vote Tomorrow

When these are cleaned up the House will pass the tax bill tomorrow.

The action was preceded by a short but spirited debate to which the House paid little attention. New York representatives protested against the tax, claiming it was an unfair restriction to business. A few westerners claimed it should be higher. A motion by Rep. Blanton, Dem., Tex., to increase the tax to 1 per cent was defeated.

The outcome was a foregone conclusion and members generally were merely speaking for the record.

The debate was closed by Rep. Boylan, Dem., N. Y., who made a humorous speech. He said a number of Congressmen had never seen New York and thought it was an acre. He said he knew one Congressman who had been here for twelve years and "never got far enough away from Washington to get to New York."

Tax Denounced

The tax was denounced by Rep. Goss, Repn., Conn., as "a violation of the principle of free bargaining."

"If we start with the stock exchange we cannot tell where we shall end," he said. "You cannot stop short selling without hurting business."

The amendment is drafted so the tax bill will be doubled on short sales. While this phase of trading is not specifically mentioned, the Treasury has advised the Ways and Means committee that inasmuch as two sale transactions are involved in short selling the tax will apply on both.

To Punish Dodgers

The tax amendment was offered by Rep. Ragon, Dem

Patrol Home Of

Chicago Banker

Chicago, Mar. 31—(UP)—Police patrolled the residence of Arthur J. Baer, vice president of the Central Republic Bank & Trust Co., after a suspected kidnaper was thwarted by a maid's vigilance.
The guard was posted after a maid at the Baer home frightened away a man who was fumbling at the window of a room in which Helene Betty Baer, two years old, was accustomed to sleep.
The maid heard a noise at the window and entered the room. She saw a man's head at the window and heard him say:
"This is the child's room."
Her scream sent the intruder fleeing. The banker answered the maid's cries and despite a recent severe illness ran out of doors seeking trace of the suspects. The Baer child was not in the room at the time although she ordinarily slept there.

Democrats Plan To

Push Road Bill

Washington, Mar. 31—(AP)—A determined effort by Democratic Senators to force action on the House bill for a $135,000,000 emergency road construction program is to be made as soon as the pending tariff bill is voted.
The road measure is a Democratic project for relieving unemployment by making possible state road construction with federal funds entirely. The bill carries $120,000,000 to match available regular federal aid allocations, the new fund to be repaid by the states gradually out of future federal aid money. Some Republicans have predicted its veto, if passed.
Sponsors of the bill were confident they could place the bill on the calendar despite the refusal of the Republican Steering Committee to give it preferred place. The entire Democratic side plus many western independent Republicans are counted for considering the bill.

Mayor Walker To

Tell 'Em A-Plenty

New York, Mar. 31—(AP)—Mayor James J. Walker says he will tell his critics plenty.
For some time Samuel Seabury, investigator of the city government, has been laying plans to get the mayor on the stand and ask him questions.
"The day is not far distant," the Mayor said yesterday, "when I will discuss in great detail the affairs of the city of New York."
Although indicating he would submit to public examination, he said he would refuse to be questioned in private. Seabury and his aides have been questioning witnesses in private before the public examination.
Without mentioning names, the Mayor hinted his telephone wires had been tapped.

PEORIA SCRIBE DEAD

Peoria, Ill., Mar. 31—(AP)—Charles Lambert, 77, dean of Peoria newspaper men, died last night. A poet, painter and philosopher, he was born in Australia. He joined the editorial staff of the Star at its founding in 1897 and remained active until his retirement on a pension eight years ago.

TAMMANY DECREES

'No Pledge' Now

Washington, Mar. 31—(AP)—The biggest block of votes in the Democratic National convention, New York state's 94, is not going to be tied up to any candidate until the very last moment before the party assembly opens in Chicago.
This is the news thrown into the conglomeration of political facts and guests by John P. Curry, boss of Tammany Hall, who spoke yesterday with the assurance given by expected control of the delegation and the manner of his instruction.
Until then, he made it plain, the 94 cannot be added to Franklin D. Roosevelt's 123, nor to the Alford E. Smith zero score which may soon become a figure, nor to the votes allocated to any other candidate.

TAX COLLECTIONS

Washington, Mar. 31—(UP)—New income tax collections through March 29 totaled $193,078,150.22 or $18,000,000 above the Treasury's preliminary estimates. It was announced today. March 1 to 29 collections last year were $331,736,751.03.
Income tax collections for the current fiscal year now total $861,199,499.60 as compared to $1,503,167,755.28 for the same period of the past fiscal year.

"It convinces me that as long as we have prohibition no home in the United States is safe," she said.
"We are thriving on the general disregard for the law."
Mrs. Scandrett, widow of Richard Scandrett, Pittsburgh attorney, believed the kidnapping should "wake people up to what's going on."
"I can't believe that they realize how strongly entrenched the criminal element is. And the pity of it is that some of the finest citizens are blind. They're down in the trenches with the bootleggers."

Coolidge Settles

For 'Injuries' To

Insurance Broker

St. Louis, Mo., Mar. 31—(AP)—Former President Calvin Coolidge has written Lewis B. Tebbetts, St. Louis insurance man, explaining he meant no offense when in a radio speech last October, he cautioned against insurance agents who "offer to save money for you by replacing your policy in another company."
Mr. Coolidge enclosed a check for $2500. Tebbetts said his reputation as the "leading advocate in the United States of the so-called term life insurance policies," was injured by Coolidge's address in which he said the following language was used:
"Beware of the so-called 'twister' and 'abstractor' or any agent who offers to save money for you by replacing your policy in another company."
The former President was served with a summons last month at the instance of Tebbetts, who also instituted similar action against the New York Life Insurance Company of which Coolidge was a director. Tebbetts said the summons against Coolidge would be dismissed April 7, but that a damage suit against the insurance company would be filed then.

Farm Committees

To Draft Own Bill

Washington, Mar. 31—(AP)—A new effort to obtain action by Congress on the equalization fee and export debenture plans of farm relief is planned by three national farm organizations.
The legislative committees of these groups—the National Grange American Farm Bureau Federation and Farmers' Union—are preparing a bill consolidating these plans. Separate bills embodying the plans—designed to remove crop surpluses and bolster prices—are now before House and Senate committees.
The farm groups want the Agricultural Marketing Act, under which the Farm Board was created, amended to give the Board authority to use any or all of the relief plans at its discretion.
They had hoped the committees would consolidate the separate proposals in one bill. The committees, however, have delayed action pending a decision on the proposed investigation of the board. Now the Grange, Farm Bureau and Farmers' Union plan to work out their own measure and urge its adoption.

'Dead' Man Is Held

On Bigamy Charges

Cleveland, Mar. 31—(AP)—A man declared legally dead 19 months ago, 13 years after he deserted his wife and two children, was believed under arrest here today.
Suspected also of bigamy, the man, Fred D. Howell, 60, was taken in custody after an inquiry begun at the request of the women he married here in 1920.
Howell claimed it was a case of mistaken identity, but detectives said a photograph furnished by the Cleveland wife, Mrs. Frances Gohring Howell, was identified by Mrs. Bertha Howell of Syracuse, N. Y., as that of her missing husband.

Liam Rudolph, a poet of sorts, was ordered freed today from Kane county jail.
The order came from receipt by U. S. Commissioner Edwin Walker of the following communication:
"I am writing this to you as a plea.
"I want you to come here and set me free.
"I have to sign a pauper's writ. I am broke, no money, not a bit!
"And I will thank you from my heart.
"When from this jail I do depart.
"A prompt order for release of Rudolph held on dry law charges was issued."

ANCIENT SCALEONS

Chicago, Mar. 31—(AP)—Maybe there isn't anything really new in the world after all.
For instance, they had corner saloons, some 2400 years ago. O. R. Sellers, Chicago archaeologist, said yesterday in telling the result of his excavation of Bet-n-Zur, a town of the Maccabees, Dr. Sellers was the head of the Theological Seminary which made important discoveries last summer in the ruins of the second city of Judea. Two saloons were dug up. One was on the corner of the market place during the regime of the Maccabees, five centuries before Christ.
Nine wine jars stood on a shelf, ready for the customers.
Today, Dr. Allen D. Bort, expert of Chicago, told of evidences of city planning in ancient Assyria and Babylon.
"In Egypt and Mesopotamia the city plan provided streets crossing at appropriate right angles and arterial thoroughfares."

"Bridge Olympic"

Starts Tomorrow

New York, Mar. 31—(AP)—A leak blamed on some unknown "black sheep" caused a furore today as 50,000 contract bridge fiends all over the world prepared to play in the "World Bridge Olympic."
The "World Bridge Olympic" is sponsored by the National Bridge Association, an Ely Culbertson organization. At exactly 8:01 P. M. tomorrow, the 50,000 are to sit down and play 16 hands, most of them trick hands. Gold and silver trophies to the number of 350 are the rewards.
The hands were sent out by Ely Culbertson's organization to 1,000 game captains sworn not to reveal them until a few minutes before the "Olympics."
Yesterday, the New York Times reviewed a neat white folder presenting the layout of the hands. Other copies were reported to have drifted into the other hands. Louis Joseph Vance, long a bridge foe of Mr. Culbertson, said you could obtain copies from Broadway speculators at $10 up.

Professor Refuses

To Accept a Divvy

Washington, Mar. 31—(AP)—Though starving to death on principle, Dr. Frederic F. Wolters today rejected the offer of a Californian to share with him his $600 annual veteran's pension.
"Out of the question," said the scholar who has reduced himself to feebleness in 32 foodless days because no one will offer him what he considers a suitable position or a satisfactory income.
"That man has offered to share his meagre pension with another, while there are thousands of wealthy persons in the country who never think of dividing their riches with any one else. I cannot understand it."

Indianapolis, Ind., March 31—(UP)—John Helton, 67, who has been making a bare living for months picking up junk along the Pennsylvania tracks, saw a dollar today gleaming between the rails.
He ran for it oblivious of an approaching train.
His body was found a few feet away, the dollar just out of his reach.

Then he took up a position, police said, near that intersection, walking up and down the block with a Winchester repeating rifle carried in the crook of his arm.
At 4:50 A. M. a cab driver saw him there, pacing up and down. A moment later the driver saw a sedan approach. O'Day's back was to the machine as it came down the block, he said.

LAUGHING SONG
When the green woods laugh with the voice of joy,
And the dimples stream runs by;
When the air does laugh with your merry wit,
And the green hill laughs with the noise of it;

When the meadows laugh with lively green,
And the grasshopper laughs in the merry scene;
When Mary and Susan and Emily with their sweet round mouths sing "ha ha he!"
When the painted birds laugh in the shade,
Where our table with cherries and nuts is spread;
To sing the sweet chorus of "Ha ha he!"
—William Blake.

W. C. T. U. Endorses
Herbert Hoover

Chicago, March 31—(AP)—A warning that prohibitionists must be "aroused from lethargy," if they want a dry President and Vice-President elected next fall has been sounded by Mrs. Ella A. Boole, National President of the Union.
Women's Christian Temperance Speaking before delegates to a W. C. T. U. conference yesterday, she endorsed President Hoover for another term as a man "whose brain is clear of the fumes of liquor" and declared a dry victory in the presidential election would serve to stem "the tide of the wet attack."

She pleaded with prohibitionists to interest themselves with qualifications of candidates, and observed that "with the present great problems to face, we need a man whose brain is clear of the fumes of liquor, and who does not owe allegiance to the huge liquor interests."
"Too little attention," she said, "is being paid to the qualifications for office of many candidates. Hundreds of men are running for office with no qualifications and merely claim to be 'wet.' The true 'drys' must realize their candidates must be capable of holding office."

The ladies were attired in beautiful party gowns of varying beautiful colors.

The installing officer then turned the meeting over to the new Worthy High Priestess, Dorothy Jane Dodd, who in a very gracious manner assumed charge and presented the soloists, the first of whom was Miss Margaret Banker of Franklin Grove, accompanied by Mrs. Conlon. Miss Banker's vocal selections were exceptionally well given and brought much applause. Miss A. I. Hardy gave two excellent and humorous readings, which delighted the audience. The final number on the program consisted of two violin solos by Miss Viola Vaage who was accompanied by Miss Gladys Vaage. These young ladies are wonderful artists and their work was highly appreciated.

Marcella Dick in a gracious manner praised Mazie Hoberg for her work during the past year and presented her with the past Worthy Priestess Jewel given by the Chapter. Agnes Lewis, in a similar manner, presented the gift from the officers of Corinthian Chapter which was a pair of silver candleabra. In behalf of the Patrol Team, Lella Bush presented her with a beautiful silver set consisting of pitcher and goblets.

In her delightful manner, she graciously thanked everyone for these beautiful presents.

The Junior Past Watchman of the Shepherd, Gavin Dick and the newly installed Watchman of the Shepherd, Orville Dodd, as well as the new Worthy High Priestess were called upon for brief talks, the latter thanked each one in turn for their efforts in making the evening such a high success.

The visitors and members then adjourned to the dining room, where delicious refreshments were served, during which music was furnished by Miss Elizabeth Hennery, accompanied by Mrs. Jack Homer.

VARIETY OF CATS HOBBY OF ILLINOIS WOMAN—Leroy, Ill.—(UPI)—Cats and kittens of all colors and a variety of breeds, all of whom are, strangely enough, guarded by a dog, are the hobby of Miss Clara Crumbaugh, of this city. She started her collection of felines five years ago when a stray cat that wandered into her yard was adopted as a family pet.

The cats have a special building in which to live and the guard is a giant police dog. Some of the cats are registered and have won two prizes, others are nondescript.

When feeding time comes, Miss Crumbaugh makes an effort to see that each cat is fed. If some are absent at the time, powder is sprinkled on the backs of those that are fed so that the unfed may be separated later for their share of feed.

BEAD EMBROIDERY USED TO TRIM SPRING TOGS—Paris—(AP)—Thread and bead embroidery are widely used as trimming on new spring togs.

A wool frock of tomato red wool is embroidered at the shoulder line in dull gold threads, while a frock of Alice blue wool has a vest and cape sleeves embroidered in rose, blue and white wool, and an afternoon dress of navy blue marocain is worked in tiny white bead flowers.

ENTERTAINERS AT LUNCHEON AND BRIDGE TODAY—Miss Myrtle Swartz is entertaining today at luncheon and two tables of contract bridge. Miss Evelyn Schrader of Plymouth Michigan, sister of Mrs. Lyle Prescott, will be an out of town guest.

GLEE CLUB TO APPEAR HERE APRIL 6TH—The Women's Glee Club of Oberlin College will appear in Dixon at the high school gymnasium on the evening of April 6th, under the auspices of the High School Parent Teachers Association. The P. T. A. hopes for a good patronage and no doubt there will be a large attendance for nearly everyone like a glee club.

Illinois P. T. A. In Rockford For Three Day Meet

Rockford, Ill., March 31—(AP)—Parent Teacher associations throughout Illinois are turning their thoughts to the choice of delegates who will attend the thirty-third annual convention of the Illinois Congress of Parents and Teachers in Rockford April 19th, 20th and 21st.

"Constructive Forces in Education," the convention theme will be developed by speakers and exhibitors.

Dean Whitehouse of Albion College, Albion, Michigan, will speak on "Constructive Forces in Education in the Home" at the banquet on Wednesday evening, at which time Miss Julia Lathrop of Rockford will be a guest of honor.

Miss Beatrice C. Hyman, principal of Stone School, Chicago, will tell of "Constructive Forces in Elementary Education" at the general session on Tuesday afternoon. Miss Judith C. Waller of the National Broadcasting Company is also on the Tuesday afternoon program.

Rev. Charles W. Kilkey, University of Chicago, will deliver the address on Tuesday evening on "Education World Peace."

On Wednesday afternoon there will be sessions for the discussion of junior and high school problems with Mrs. B. F. Langworthy, Winnetka, last vice president of the National Congress of Parents and Teachers, presiding. Miss Genevieve Melody, principal of Calumet High School, Chicago, and Dr. George Shergar of Armour Institute of Technology, Chicago, will be speakers.

Mrs. Carl L. Schmidt, Evanston, is the program chairman, and Mrs. Clarence M. Dale, Rockford, is general chairman of arrangements. Faust Hotel will serve as headquarters for the convention.

Infidelity Starts First in the Mind

Chicago, March 31—(AP)—The Episcopal church has begun new efforts to make marriage vows "stick."

Members contemplating matrimony will henceforth receive instructions on the responsibilities of married life.

New rules were distributed among the churches of the Chicago Diocese yesterday with a statement from the Rev. Harold Holt, rector of Grace Church, Oak Park in which he said 90 per cent of all divorces were obtained on "silly" grounds.

Three days notice will be required before a marriage can be performed by the church, and the couples will receive instructions from the rectors that the creation of a family is the real aim of married life.

"Wandering affections," said Rev. Holt, "are the sign of wavering affections. Infidelity is not of the body first, but of the mind. Few divorces are secured unless the mind has coveted another."

GUEST IS EXPECTED FROM SAN FRANCISCO—Mrs. P. Z. Bloch of San Francisco, Cal., is expected from the west the first of next week to be a guest of the Joseph Petersburg and Cass Byrd families.

Matinee Party

For Mrs. Seydel

Miss Alice Richardson was hostess

Wednesday at an informal but delightful luncheon at the Coffee House, honoring Mrs. Glenn Seydel, followed by a matinee party. Mr. and Mrs. Seydel are leaving Dixon in the near future as Mr. Seydel, who has been manager of the local Ford-Hopkins store, will be manager of the new store to be opened soon in Ottumwa, Iowa.

In her stiffly starched blue dress and white apron, she held court in her rocking chair in the nursery, bidding good-bye to her associates and reminiscing over the changes in children of yesterday and today.

"Modern times seem to have made life too short for any of it to be spent in just being a child," she said. "There aren't many children, real children, any more. There are babies, little tots, adults and these strange young creatures who feel they must be grownups."

"The little ones still want to hear about the three little bears, but the modern lad of six or seven just looks bored. And if you won't watch out he will correct you on the football score."

SAY NICHOLAS AND CAROL ARE RECONCILED—Bucharest, Mar. 31—(UP)—Reports of reconciliation between Prince Nicholas and his brother, King Carol, were published today by the newspaper Adeverul. It said the Prince would return to Roumania and live at Queen Marie's palace. Nicholas left the country when Carol refused to rescind an annulment of his marriage to a commoner.

WARTBURG LEAGUE MEETS TUESDAY EVENING—The Wartburg League of the Immanuel Lutheran church will meet Tuesday evening at 8 o'clock at the church.

Children Want To Be Grownup

Chicago, March 31—(AP)—There are only two classes of children

these days who are mannerly—children of the very poor and children of the very rich.

This was the observation of silver-haired Mrs. Mary "Ma" Lyons, known to several generations of the traveling public, who today at the age of 70, is retiring after 36 years with the Chicago & North Western Railroad as nursery matron.

In her stiffly starched blue dress and white apron, she held court in her rocking chair in the nursery, bidding good-bye to her associates and reminiscing over the changes in children of yesterday and today.

TURNING TO THE PRESIDENT.

"I think that when we look back upon these days when there is not so much partisanship we will be thankful that we had such a man to guide us."

In these calm, matter of fact words, Representative Tilson closed a speech in the House of Representatives after a day in which Democratic Senators and Representatives had devoted hours to savage attack upon the President. That in this statement Mr. Tilson accurately forecast the attitude of American opinion in the future toward President Hoover can hardly be denied. And that "future" may be nearer than some suspect. Many close observers of public sentiment see even now a strong turn of opinion toward the President. This is made manifest by meetings and conventions that have been held in many States for the selection of delegates to the National convention. Without a single exception wherever Republican committees or Republican District or State conventions have been held enthusiasm for "Hoover and Curtis" has been marked. It has been spontaneous enthusiasm, too, not carefully worked up by the leaders of the party but obviously springing from the genuine feeling of the rank and file. The idea, heard in some quarters, that "the leaders" are forcing the nominations of Hoover against an adverse sentiment has no foundation in fact. The people recognize but one leader and that is the President. More particularly is that true since Congress convened last December. Prior to that time there was doubtless some reservation of judgment. Many were waiting to see whether some one in Congress might bring forward a program with a better promise of good results than anything President Hoover had to offer. But with Congress now more than three months in session the people have discovered that the Hoover program is the only program, that no other has been offered and that has met with such general acceptance that even a Democratic Congress has felt obliged to support it. The people have discovered also that the President is doing his job with every last pound of energy that is in him, ignoring attacks, partisan or slanderous, and they are giving him steadily increasing confidence, approval and support.

GANGSTERS AND THE "400."

If you haven't a gangster or two on your calling list you simply aren't one of the best people these days.

Writing in the New York World-Telegram, Helen Worden recently pointed out that metropolitan high society has been cultivating underworld leaders in a big way of late.

Men whose names are notorious throughout the United States have entered into some of the nation's most exclusive homes. Rum-runners, murderers, heads of "vice syndicates"—which is probably the world's dirtiest business—gamblers, fixers, rogues of all varieties and degrees, have got on more or less intimate terms with some of the people who are supposed to be the finest flower of American civilization.

Miss Worden remarks that it causes little comment in New York to see a member of the "400" in company with a gangster. Some gangsters, in fact, have their homes on Park avenue, supposedly the finest street in the country.

All of this casts a pretty revealing light on the standards and values current in high society.

A wealthy leisure class, in any civilization, justifies its existence—like everything else in this world—by its works. It exists by virtue of the fact that a great many people live in poverty and want. If it gives society compensating factors in return, a rough sort of balance is struck; if not, some sort of readjustment is inevitable.

The American leisure class, at best, has never given a return equal to that of leisure classes in European countries. In the arts, in statesmanship, in industrial leadership it has been painfully sterile. A clan like the Adams family is the exception where it ought to be the rule.

This class today seems to be bent on giving a new demonstration of its utter uselessness, its complete lack of a social conscience. Its leaders ought to remember that sooner or later human society has a way of abolishing things which serve no good purpose.

END THE "LAME DUCKS"

The legislatures of four states have already ratified the "lame duck" amendment to the Constitution, which would advance the inauguration of presidents from March to January and would do away with the archaic short sessions of discredited congresses.

This speedy response indicates that the amendment will not be long in getting the necessary ratification by three-fourths of the states. That is quite as it should be.

Once ratified, the amendment will make the government at Washington much more responsive to the will of the people, and will end a great deal of lost motion in Uncle Sam's federal machinery. May the remaining 32 ratifications come through as speedily as the first four did!

We should balance the budget and we can do so by cutting expenses. If we fail to cut expenses, it will be proof positive that bureaucracy is in control of the government. Senator William E. Borah of Idaho.

Soon Duncy, to the candleman said, "Tell me, mister, if you can, what are you going to do with all the candles that you make? Do they just stand upon the shelf, or do you burn them all yourself? Gee, I would think that when they stand around a lot would break."

The candleman replied, "Well, son, I do not do this work for fun and neither do I burn all of the candles standing around. My candles are shipped everywhere. That's why I work with utmost care. I am the finest candleman the world has ever found."

"Right now I have an order for a lot more than I have in store. If you lads want to help me, we can make a lot real soon. Let's all turn in and do our best. When we have worked a while, we'll rest. To pay you, I will feed you all a dandy lunch at noon."

"That suits us fine," the Tines cried. "We'll be a big help once we've tried. We'll clean the little molds out and you fill them up again. Be careful, 'cause the wax is hot and it would burn, as like as not." The candleman just smiled and said, "I spill some, now and then."

But he was careful as could be and shortly Windy shouted "Gee! You haven't spilled a single drop. You have a steady hand." They worked all morning, then had lunch. Of course this pleased the Tine bunch, and so all afternoon they also worked to beat the band.

When it grew dark as dark could be, the Tines said, "We cannot see." "Don't worry! I will make some light." The kind old fellow said, "Here, Duncy, is a match or two. Just strike one. Then it's up to you to light the little candle that I've fastened to my head."

PLAY-BOY MAYOR'S LATEST HOLIDAY GIVES HIM ALL-TIME VACATION CHAMPIONSHIP

Mayor James J. Walker was a long way from New York's City Hall and the cares of his administration when these pictures were taken, showing some of his recuperative activities. At upper left you see him reaching for the sky during a burlesque train robbery that welcomed him to California. Next he's shown acting on the steering committee of a

DEXTER TEED

NEA Service

New York. — All existing records among mayors for taking vacations have been broken by dapper Jimmy Walker, the playboy Mayor of New York.

Now that he is back from his latest trip—a week at Hot Springs, Va. — he has been figured that since he was first elected in 1926 he has been vacationing 227 days on 13 different tours. He has been to Europe, Cuba, Bermuda and all over the United States.

"The Casino Incident" Although ill-health was given as the reason why he went to Hot Springs, his critics took the announcement with a grain of salt, and recalled the "Casino Incident." On a Sunday last winter it was solemnly announced that James J. Walker was suffering from low blood pressure, a weak heart and sundry ailments which would force him to remain at home to rest and recuperate. Papers printed the story.

On Monday, Broadway buzzed with gossip. It was learned that the mayor had attended a party at the Central Park Casino the night before, despite his announced illness. It must have been a hilarious affair, for there were arguments and fights. A Broadway columnist and producer, Earl Carroll had a puerile encounter.

So thereafter, even if Walker's illness should prove to be serious, base New York would probably yawn skeptically.

Started Early

The boyish-looking mayor started his vacationing career very casually. Early in 1926 he took two short vacations to Atlantic City, and in March he swung below the Mason and Dixon line for eight days, "selling New York to the south." He took two more vacations that year going to New Hampshire's White Mountains for 13 days and to the Thousand Islands for three days. He was christened "Ambassador to the World."

Although a vice scandal threatened in 1927, he went to Cuba for 27 days. That spring he had a vacation in Atlantic City. And when problems of his office pressed on his mentality he traveled in Europe for 48 days.

It was a business trip — said he in 1929 — when he hopped in the private car of W. F. Kenny and went to Florida. That trip was not recorded on the "white sands" of Bermuda in 1930 for 14 days.

Gamboling on the "white sands" he announced that he was recovering from an illness. In New York a storm was breaking around the city hall. Jimmy smiled and had his fun.

In 1932 Walker surpassed his vacation taking records for other years. In the spring, with demands for his removal resounding, he sojourned at Palm Springs, California, for 27 days, basked in the sun and recovered his health.

Keeps Consistent

His poor health was given as the reason for his European trip of 49 days last summer. While colorful Jimmy was being made a commander in the Legion of Honor in France, critics in New York were vocal. He came back and faced the music.

Last fall when the hue and cry raised about his missing financial agent, Russell T. Sherwood, was at its height and criticism of the mayor was banging at City Hall doors, Jimmy went to California to plead for Tom Mooney. He was lauded for his humanitarian effort. On the way back he stopped for rest and relaxation in Southern California.

And now, after another vacation, Hizzoner is back again, all set for another vacation!

BACON RIND WAS BURIED IN FINE STYLE YESTERDAY

White Man's And Osage Rites Honored Dead Indian Chieftain

Pawhuski, Okla., Mar. 31.—(UP)—The white man's funeral rites and Osage Indian ceremonies honored Bacon Rind, a chieftain of the Osages Wednesday as he was carried to his grave upon a hilltop overlooking Indian village, here.

Hired mourners chanted their monotonous supplications to the Great Spirit, and a Catholic priest murmured in Latin a requiem mass for the picturesque old Indian leader.

Bacon Rind, wealthy and influential leader of his tribe, died Monday after a long illness, but a week before his death he outlined the funeral plans, and his wishes were followed even to the smallest details.

In the first gray light of dawn an Osage medicine man entered the chieftain's modern home, and made his way through the ranks of Indian mourners to the dead man's side.

With painstaking care he applied the paint of an Osage warrior to the bronze face of the tribal patriarch—but he did not disturb the gold locket, enclosing a picture of the late President Harding, which hung at Bacon Rind's throat.

The picture, given the chief during a ceremony at Washington, was his proudest possession, and he chose to take it with him to the grave.

In Indian Finery
Bacon Rind's erect, tall form was clad in Indian finery, all of which was buried with him.

At ten A. M. there came a break in the Indian ritual. The chanting mourners ceased their dirge, and the old chief's body was carried to the church of the Immaculate Conception, where a brief requiem mass was said.

That service ended, Indian rites held sway once more. Mourners escorted the body to the family cemetery, set upon a hill high above the village.

As the sun's rays pointed straight downward, Bacon Rind's body was lowered into the grave. In Indian belief, the portals of the happy hunting ground are open to the spirit of the dead when the sun is at its zenith.

In accord with his wish, the mourners, returning to his home for a day and night of feasting and of "give-away" ceremonies, carried with them the American flag. Usually in Indian burials it is draped from the grave flaps, but Bacon Rind had asked that it be flown at his home on every legal holiday, just as before his death.

The "give-away" ceremonies included division among his relatives and friends of every earthly possession left by the old chief, and they were manifold.

The most photographed and the most publicized of his race, he also was one of the wealthiest. His oil lands made him very rich, and he had accumulated, too, many valuable and expensive gifts from his "white brothers."

B. Miller, F. S. Berry, S. L. Shaw, George Dunseth, A. L. Willis, Charles Conibear. The burial was in Woodside cemetery. Mrs. Anderson will be greatly missed by a large circle of friends here. Her obituary was given in last week's issue of this paper.

Mr. and Mrs. Howard Miller, Mr. and Mrs. George King and Mr. and Mrs. George Meister attended a 500 card party at the Charles Schmucker home at Franklin Grove Monday night of last week.

Mildred Leake came home Saturday night from the Galeway Inn and returned Sunday night.

Bernice Conibear entertained the bridge club last Thursday night.

Mrs. Lloyd of Chicago who has been visiting her daughter, Mrs. Evan David returned home Thursday.

Mr. and Mrs. Andrew Aschenbrenner and two little sons were here over the week end. They will move from Rock Island to Moline this week taking their furniture from here.

Marjorie Conibear and Rose Martenson are home from DeKalb for the Easter vacation this week.

Coach Gilboe and family spent Easter in Baraboo Wis. and Misses Shoemaker Gerber and Slaymaker to their respective homes in Rock Island, Morton and Erie.

The Crossroads Community club of the Kesselring school district gave the following program last Friday night:

Saxophone Solo—Mrs. Harold Hillison, accompanied by Margaret Becker.

Accordeon Solo—Mr. Rickenback of Oregon.

Piano Duet—Frances Hahn, Lucile Taylor.

Vocal Solos—Fred Kesselring, accompanied by Helen Blocher of Franklin Grove.

Piano Solo—Mr. Rickenback.

Piano Solo—Rose Ann Deutsch of Dixon, age 6.

Reading—Mrs. W. S. Frost.

Vocal and Whistling Solo—Margaret Banker.

Accordeon Solo—Mr. Rickenback.

Guitar and Harmonica Solos—Glenn Iken.

Accordeon and Guitar Duets—Messrs. Iken and Rickenback.

After the program, the refreshment committee served a delicious lunch. The club will present the play "All a Mistake" a three act comedy Friday night in the Lincoln hall in Franklin Grove.

Mrs. S. L. Shaw, president of the Pilgrim Study class had prepared an interesting program for the Belgian Tea Wednesday afternoon of last week. It featured several appropriate songs, guessing of the names of songs by a given line, an excellent negro dialect reading by Mrs. Braiden, a clever pantomime, with Mrs. Shaw reading the story and she also read extracts from "These Missionaries." An article written by Mrs. Arthur Shaw of Hongchow, China, for the March number of the Forum. Refreshments consisting of Belgian waffle cookies and apricot pie made by Mrs. Coy Beeny, tea, coffee and Easter candies. Despite the cold weather and blocked roads, there was a good attendance.

Messrs. and Mesdames Glen Wagner and Charles Schmucker of Franklin Grove and Howard Miller were entertained last Friday night at the George King home.

Mrs. Eri Conibear was called to Peru Sunday by the serious illness of her mother, Mrs. J. A. Shoden-sack. She is now somewhat better.

Rev. Evan David spent last week here as there was a vacation in the theological school. He returned there Monday.

Josephine Frost of Amboy is spending this vacation week with her grandparents, Mr. and Mrs. W. E. Jones.

Rev. David will take for his text next Sunday morning "The Unrecognized Christ." There will be no meeting in the evening as a group of the young people plan to attend a conference in Sterling.

Bettie Mae Degner has been ill with whooping cough but is now much better.

Miss Mary Dibley, a highly respected resident of this place, died suddenly last Thursday at 5 P. M. from a heart attack. Although she had been in poor health for many months, her condition had seemed Gloomy skies and the Weather Man's forecast of rain didn't squelch the gregarious instincts of Mr. and Mrs. Public who, multiplied by many thousands, turned out in their spring finery for the Easter Parade on Manhattan's famous Fifth Avenue. Here's a view of the throng of promenaders—modishly dressed and otherwise—who came forth to see and be seen on the crowded boulevard.

Friend and Foe of Beer Tax

Here are two congressmen who played major roles in the battle over the proposed tax on 25 per cent beer in the House. Thomas H. Cullen, left, of Brooklyn, sponsored the bill. Charles R. Crisp, right, of Georgia, fought the bill on the grounds that prohibition should not be injected into the tax fight. The bill was defeated, 216 to 132.

somewhat improved of late, and her passing came as a distinct shock to relatives and friends.

The deceased was the oldest daughter of Mr. and Mrs. George Dibley and was born at Newcastle-on-the-Tyne Eng., in 1855 and had attained the age of 77 years at her time of passing. She is survived by one brother Charles, two nephews, Rev. Joseph Dibley of Lansing, Mich., William Dibley of Detroit, Mich., and several great nephews and nieces. Her sister, Mrs. Margaret Kempster, died in December.

Miss Dibley possessed a character of sterling worth and integrity and while deeply devoted to her family and home, she found time for many deeds of kindness and thoughtfulness. During her twenty-one years of residence in this village, she had made many warm friends who will miss her presence.

She was a charter member of Abigail Rebekeah lodge No. 759 of Lee Center and was a faithful attendant as long as her health would permit.

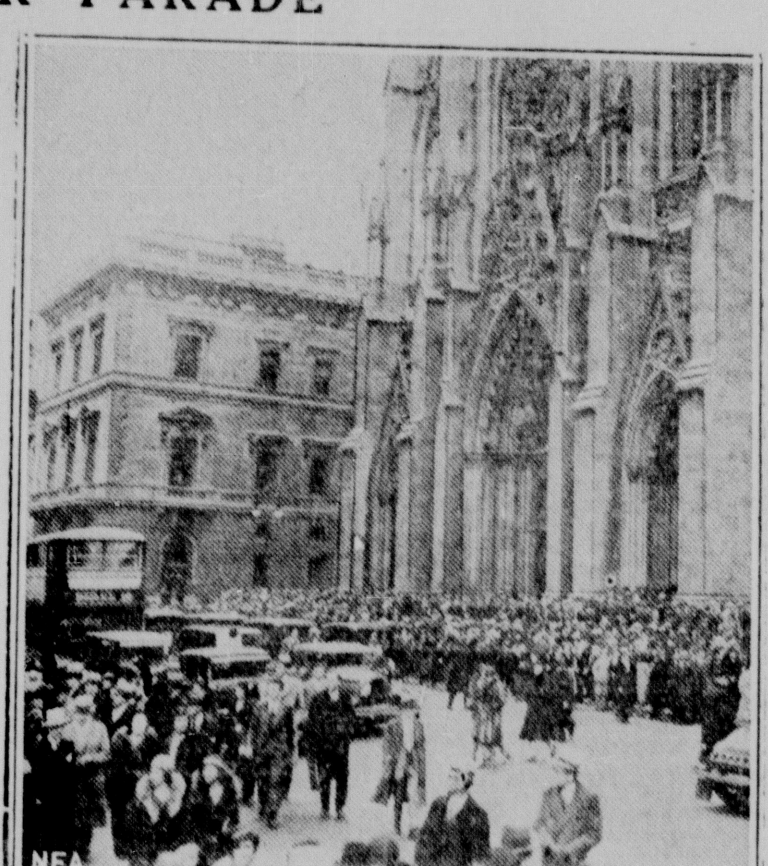

Funeral services were conducted in the church Sunday afternoon by Rev. Evan David. Mrs. Raymond Degner and Faith Dishong sang, accompanied by Mrs. S. L. Shaw. The I. O. O. F. pallbearers were George Freadhoff, George Iken, George Perry, Dewey Kenney, F. L. Jahn, Clem B. Miller. Members of the Abigail Rebekeah lodge formed an escort and gave the Rebekeah service at the grave in Woodside cemetery.

Those attending from a distance were Mr. and Mrs. William Dibley, son Harry, Mrs. Davis, Detroit, Mich.; Mrs. A. J. Radde, sons Russell and Albert, Elgin; Mrs. Earl Breyman, Rochelle; Mrs. Adeline Henschel, Dixon; Mrs. Helen Aschenbrenner, Frank Brannigan, L. W. Entorf, Amboy.

The annual town election and meeting will be held at Shaws next Tuesday, April 5. There are two candidates for the office of highway commissioner, A. H. Hill the present incumbent, and George Dunseth.

The three high school plays which were postponed last week on account of the stormy weather, will be presented Thursday night of this week.

Mrs. Hazel Walters and Lillian Haub of the Amboy hospital called at the Eri Conibear home Tuesday night.

When the Easter Parade wended its way down Fifth Avenue, New York, the crowds were thickest the top-hats most numerous and the gardenias most abundant—as usual—at the spot pictured here. It's the front of famous, fashionable St. Patrick's Cathedral, thronged by worshippers during the Easter services. Thousands of persons, unable to gain admission to the crowded edifice are seen waiting on the sidewalks outside.

INJURY, DEATH HAVE HIT MAJOR LEAGUE OUTFITS

Few Managers Likely To Have Full Strength As Season Opens

New York, Mar. 31—(AP)—It's a rare and happy baseball manager today who can count on having his strongest line-up available for the opening game of the major league season.

Injuries, operations, illness and even death have cut sharply into the roster of eligibles since the training camps sprouted a month ago.

Brooklyn, with two regulars out for an indefinite period, appears to have been hardest hit. Del Bissanette, regular first baseman, is in the hospital after an operation on the Achilles tendon and may not be available for months. Frank (Lefty) O'Doul, slugging outfielder, is nursing a bruised right hand that is calculated to keep him out at least until the season begins.

The Boston Red Sox will line up April 11 against Washington without two players Manager Shauno Collins had counted upon. Big Ed Morris, veteran pitcher, was fatally stabbed the day he was to have left for camp, and George Stumpf, a promising outfielder purchased from Quincy, Ill., is in bed with intestinal influenza.

Yanks Hit Hard
An operation for appendicitis cost the New York Yankees the services of pitcher Henry Johnson until well up in the campaign and it is doubtful even then he will be of much value to the club. George Pipgras, who underwent a similar operation early last season, did not regain his pitching form until the last day of the race.

Yankee adherents are viewing with the customary alarm a "kink" that settled in Babe Ruth's neck the other day and is forcing the big fellow to carry his head at half mast.

Two of the Philadelphia Nationals' four first line pitchers are returning from the south in doubtful condition. Jim Elliott, the club's ace southpaw, is wearing a slap of porous plaster on his back and groaning with every pitch, while Clise Dudley is nursing a sore arm. Chuck Klein, the Phils' powerhouse, has a pair of ailing ankles.

Giants Afflicted
John McGraw is having much difficulty getting all his New York Giants on the field at the same time. Johnny Vergez, third baseman, is on the bench with an injured knee cap and Catcher Frank Hogan also has an uncertain knee, aggravated by a vast surplus of weight that refuses to come off. Adding to McGraw's troubles is the fact that second baseman Hughie Critz still can't get the old whip in the throwing arm. The Giants are reported to be scouting around for another second baseman and another catcher.

Mickey Cochrane, the Athletics' brilliant catcher, is going about in carpet slippers after an operation on an infected foot, but will be ready by opening day if there are no complications. Alvin Crowder, Washington right-hander, has been called home by illness in his family and may not return until after the race starts.

Yesterday's Results—

At Orlando, Fla.—Cincinnati, (N) 10; Philadelphia (A) 9.

At Bradenton, Fla.—Boston (N) 11; St. Louis (N) 9.

At West Palm Beach, Fla.—Buffalo (D) 3; St. Louis (A) 1.

At Los Angeles—Chicago (A) 9, Detroit (A) 5.

At Savannah, Ga.—Boston (A) 10; Newark (D) 0.

At Atlanta—Philadelphia (N) 7; Atlanta (SA) 5.

At San Francisco—New York (A) 2; House of David 0.

At Nashville, Tenn.—Nashville (SA) 5; Toronto 4.

At Knoxville, Tenn.—Knoxville (SA) 6; Reading (D) 3.

Savannah, Ga.—Having demonstrated at Orlando, Fla., yesterday that they possess the required punch, by defeating the Athletics, 10 to 9, the Cincinnati Reds were here today for a game with the Boston Red Sox.

The Reds shattered a two run lead of the Philadelphia team and won the game when Mickey Heath drove the ball over the fence to follow home two other runners.

Wyosung, Lucas and Carroll will pitch three rounds each against the Bostonians.

Los Angeles—Jonathan Stone was nursing a spike wound and Charlie Gehring was hoping a rest would ease the recurrent soreness in his throwing arm as the Detroit Tigers headed eastward today, their western training season at an end.

It wasn't a particularly happy occasion and things weren't helped much by a 9 to 5 defeat administered yesterday by the Chicago Cubs. The Tigers have four games in Kansas City and one in Springfield, Ill. before they reach home.

Raleigh, N. C.—The Philadelphia Athletics were on their way here today from Orlando, Fla., to which they bade adieu last night after dropping a game to the Cincinnati Reds, 10 to 9. Even with two home runs by Jimmy Foxx, the Mackmen were beaten out when Mickey Heath cast the deciding vote for the Reds by clouting a homer in the ninth with two men on base.

Atlanta, Ga.—The Phils hope to chalk up their fourth victory over the Atlanta Crackers in as many days today to give a fitting finish to their southern training sojourn.

After the game today Burt Shotton's charges hurry to catch an early train for home, where they are scheduled to arrive late Friday.

San Francisco—Manager John McGraw is worried over the lack of drawing power shown by the New York Giants' exhibition games. Two games at San Francisco have drawn only 1,300 paying customers, to a park that will hold 24,000.

"We've got to do something to attract fans," McGraw said. "Lack of fight is responsible."

Birmingham, Ala.—Headed home the New York Yankees had a pitching problem with them today. No one seemed to know just how to rank the five leading rookies.

Due to his three hit victory over the House of David team yesterday, Manager Joe McCarthy was boosting Paul Andrews as one of the best. Babe Ruth favored Frank Nikola.

Savannah, Ga.—The Red Sox training camp family was broken up today. Manager Collins sent John Quinn and Hugh Duffy back to Boston with Bob Barr, Johnny Crimmins, Sy Slaughter, Harry A. Mudloff, Pat Patterson and Dick Chapman. Tonight the Sox were to move up to Wilmington, N. C., where Walter Sasse, catcher, and Harry Burns, pitcher will be left with the southern club. The Reds are here for the getaway game with the Sox today.

St. Petersburg, Fla.—After 800 miles of bus travel and three games in the last three days, the Braves enjoyed a day off today. Manager Bill McKechnie believes the Tribe has found itself after a bad start and was beaming today, with the memory of yesterday's 11-9 win over the Cards. The Tribe drove out 16 hits.

Blood, Miss.—Early season fears as to the ability of the Washington Senators to organize a fool-proof pitching staff this year have been dispelled to the extent that Manager Walter Johnson is admittedly pleased by his hurlers.

Alvin Crowder, Fred Marberry, Lloyd Brown and Monte Weaver are giving complete satisfaction and will be rotated in regular order. Further down the list, Carl Fischer has as great possibilities as any; Bob Burke may do, and perhaps Frank Randall. Bob A. Friedrich has shown enough promise to be retained.

Los Angeles—Philip K. Wrigley was to get his first glimpse of the Chicago Cubs today since they father, the late William Wrigley, were bequeathed to him by his Jr.

He may see plenty of action as the Pittsburgh Pirates were here for the opening game of a four-game series which will close the two teams' California spring trip.

Shreveport, La.—Chicago's White Sox already know what a winning streak is like.

Since they started to click, Lew Fonseca's men have won nine straight games against Texas League teams. Victory No. 10, was made impossible yesterday by a good old fashion southern down-pour.

New Orleans—One of the reasons for big hopes of the Cleveland Indians this year is their improved fielding. In their training camp games they have averaged 975, 12 points better than their last season's mark, and only one point less than the 1931 averages of the Athletics and the Washington Senators.

Sarge Connally planned to pitch nine innings today in the Tribe's final practice game with the Toledo Mud Hens.

He broke both legs in his attempt to become a hurdler, and a pony sat on his lap on his first whirl at polo. Then came fencing, and he soon was as full of holes as an adult Swiss cheese. Boxing, rowing, running, archery, badminton, and bowling followed in that order, and he was a failure in each.

When he was in the dressing table stage, he could only ping. Undiscouraged, he worked on. It was while working on the living room table that he found he could pong, too.

Spurred by this turning of the tide, he worked feverishly, sometimes spending 7 hours at the table. During these sessions he scorned food and drink, depending entirely on steak and hot coffee to keep him alive. Then came the day when he knew he could improve no more. His forehead was devastating his backhand a beauty, his strategy a joy forever, and his cunning as baffling as a ferryboat schedule printed in Chinese.

Ready for the supreme test, he sat down and waited on invitations to tournaments. He waited a week. Two weeks. Three weeks. A month. Six months. Would he never be asked to play? Never be given a chance to demonstrate his amazing skill. It certainly looked that way.

And then came today's mail. He opened the first letter, an invitation to attend a house warming at Mattewan. He opened the second, a little note telling him his Uncle Charlie had died, leaving him a million dollars. He tossed it aside and picked up the third and last envelope.

He gave it a quick once-over and then shouted with joy. He danced a jig. He cut a caper. He sang songs. He wept with exultation. When he calmed down he read the contents of the letter again, just to make sure. Yes, it was true. There, in black and white, was an invitation to compete in the first annual national amateur ping pong tournament on April 15 and 16. And at the Waldorf Astoria, too, and in the grand ballroom three. The purse, in addition to the King's 50 guineas, first donated by Queen Victoria in 1860, is $7,500. Last year the added money was $10,000.

Sports Parade

BY HENRY MCLEMORE

United Press Staff Correspondent

New York, Mar. 31—(UP)—This is a success story, one that stands to inspire young and old. It is a better story than the one about the young man who, greeted with jeers when he sat down to play the piano, went on to speak to the waiter in French. And much more inspirational than the story of the chap who, dissatisfied with his salary of $25,000 a year, sold Congressional Records in his spare time and soon rose to the head of a great exterminating firm at $60 per week.

This is a story about a guy who wouldn't give up. He was a very ordinary guy, this guy. His biceps did not bulge, and beneath his salt-low skin no muscles rippled like running water. On the contrary he was so weak he couldn't use a revolving door unless a Kate Smith was coming through the other side. He had fallen arches, pink toothbrush spots before his eyes and a buzzing in his ears.

But underneath this frail framework beat a heart that knew no defeat. This guy was determined to be a sports champion. He swore to himself that nothing would thwart his ambition, not even death.

For three years his was a story of heroic failure. He tried football first, spending three months on a deserted field studying the intricacies of the dropkick. Threatened by the authorities, he shifted to billiards. He gave this up only after tearing up 27 tables trying to make a massie shot.

He broke both legs in his attempt to become a hurdler, and a pony sat on his lap on his first whirl at polo. Then came fencing, and he soon was as full of holes as an adult Swiss cheese. Boxing, rowing, running, archery, badminton, and bowling followed in that order, and he was a failure in each.

FOR RENOMINATION

State Representative

on the Republican Ticket

Mr. Collins . . .

HAS been faithful to all farmers and all taxpayers . . . he voted for and helped to pass bills favoring his district. He has vigorously opposed all bills that would confer hardships on any of his people. He is for you 100 per cent—he has and will keep every promise.

HE VOTED FOR and helped to pass the bill lowering the state license on small farm trucks, etc.

HE VOTED FOR and helped to pass the bill improving the Chattel Mortgage Law, enabling the farmer to get credit.

HE VOTED FOR and helped to pass the State Income Tax Law, which will make Chicago wealth and personal property tax dodgers pay their honest, fair and just taxes in the support of our state government. This is not an additional tax, but means LOWER TAXES for the farmer, personal property and home owner.

HE VOTED FOR and helped to pass the bill removing the necessity for licenses for clover hullers, threshing machines, ensilage cutters, corn shredders, hay presses, portable sawmills, and similar vehicles used for agricultural purposes.

HE VOTED FOR and helped to pass the bill paying mothers' pensions, blind pensions and judges' salaries out of state taxes, thereby reducing county taxes on real estate and farm land, and lightening the burden for small home owners.

HE VIGOROUSLY OPPOSED increased appropriations and increased salaries of all state senators and representatives.

HE VIGOROUSLY OPPOSED the additional two-cent increase in gas tax.

HE VIGOROUSLY OPPOSED state tax on cigarettes and tobacco.

HE VIGOROUSLY OPPOSES senatorial reapportionment, and giving Chicago and Cook County full representation in both houses, as this would work a material hardship on all counties except Cook.

NEED OF VISION IS STRESSED BY GRADY CANTRELL

Another Big Audience
Heard Evangelist
Wednesday Eve

Another great audience assembled at the Cantrell Tabernacle on West Boyd street last night to hear Grady Cantrell discourse upon, "What Every One Must Have to Succeed." His text was Prov. 28:18, "Where there is no vision, the people perish."

Ray Harris, the jovial song leader assisted by Dick Shobe at the piano, led in a rousing thirty minute service of song preceding the sermon. The large chorus choir is increasing in numbers nightly. The large choir platform that accommodates more than two hundred will soon be filled. Mr. Harris is teaching the choir and audience a number of catchy choruses and spirituals which everybody seems to enjoy. Mr. Choate, pianist and xylophone player is a musician of superior ability and is a great favorite with choir and audience.

A trio was sung last night by Miss Johnson and the Hanson sisters of Silvis. The young ladies are skilled singers and received hearty applause from the audience. They sang on numerous occasions at Rev. Cantrell's meeting at East Moline last spring.

Mr. Harris promises to introduce much outdoor talent in the music of the revival. On Tuesday evening a male quartet from Freeport brought a number that was highly pleasing to all. They will appear again at an early date. The quartet is composed of Rev. J. D. Cotherman, E. J. Burke, Rev. L. A. Whitesell and his son, J. W. Whitesell.

In Happy Mood
Evangelist Cantrell was in a happy mood last night and kept his crowd laughing most of the time with his amusing anecdotes and comic illustrations. He displays much art as an actor, yet never fails to clinch a truth at the close of an illustration. He is in deep earnest but believes there is more religion in a laugh than in a groan. It is evident that the great audiences that throng the tabernacle are not only being highly entertained but are being instructed and find much food for earnest thought.

"Some people have the eyesight of a hawk but the vision of a clam," said Mr. Cantrell at the opening of his discourse last evening. "The wise writer of Proverbs proclaimed this without a vision the people perish. This is true today. Not only must individuals have vision, but so must communities, cities and nations."

"Do you know what is the matter with most individuals—business men, professional men and common workers? They have no vision. Bruce Barton recently made a study of business conditions and stated that what was ailing most business men was that they were afraid to jump off the bridge into the water."

"Both the cat and the otter like fish. The trouble with the cat is that he hates to get his feet wet. But the otter sits by the stream and the first fish that comes by is a goner, for he plunges right in after him."

"Vision without a task is but a dream. A task without vision is a drudge. Do you want your work to become easy? Get a vision. Have an objective. Everything that we see that has been wrought by man was first a vision in some man's brain. You can't do anything you can't vision. And you can do anything you can vision."

"The trouble with most churches is that they are satisfied to just hold their own. They lack vision. Many Christians are content to fish too close to shore. Jesus said 'launch out into the deep.' He had a vision of the last man saved. He said, 'Go get him!'"

"To succeed in this fight against sin, you can't just talk about the little woolly lambs and babbling brooks. You've got to get in and fight every step of the way."

A Horse's Vision
"We used to have an old horse a Clydesdale. His name was Jake—he was awful. Worse than a model T Ford. He was as hard to get started as a good program on the radio. We had to lick him more than all-day suckers going away from home. He was tired discouraging, broken hearted. He was for less work and more corn. But when he turned his head towards home it was a different story. The same horse, same buggy, the same road. But, oh boy! he stuck out his old ears, shook his old tail and stepped on the gas. Why this sudden change? He was fired with ambition—he had a vision, a goal in sight—a warm stall, and a stack of hay. He didn't need any whip on the outside now, he had one on the inside—a vision!

The Power of United Effort
"Oh! if we could only get a vision of what the cooperation of Christian forces could do—it's power!"

"Cooperation," explained Sambo "is a baseball game between the Knights of Columbus and the Ku Klux Klan with a negro umpire for the Jewish relief. Now that's what I want—your cooperation. I am not asking you to endorse everything I do or say for two reasons. In the first place I don't need it, and in the second place I don't think it would do much good. But I do want and expect your cooperation. God will do all the endorsing. Acts 5:38. The reason I need your cooperation is this. Individually we cannot exert much power. There is no over in a rain drop—but when all the rain drops that fall in Canada, New York, Pennsylvania, Michigan and the Great Lakes unite in one big effort at Niagara Falls tremendous power is developed. So, with the church of Jesus Christ—when we can pull together in an accord with but a single thought—the building of Thy Kingdom—we'll take this town for Christ. Imagine one of those little raindrops saying, 'I'm a little Methodist rain drop. I won't go with that bunch,' another saying, 'I'm a little Presbyterian rain drop. I'm going another way. I can't associate with that other crowd of raindrops.' 'I'm a little Baptist church rain drop. I'm a little Christian church rain drop. I'm a little Catholic church rain drop. I'm a little Protestant church rain drop. I'm a little I must be exclusive. I must not mix up too much with those other rain drops for fear everything won't be regular.' 'So my good friends we look and the power and beauty of Niagara is departed—nothing but a dry, dusty hole—a scar a liability instead of an asset. So with the church when she attempts to live unto herself, an ecclesiastical graveyard of dry bones.

"Jesus wants united effort. He did not say 'Go build a church on some corner,' but 'Go ye and disciple the nations.' The curse of America today is church members fighting among themselves instead of uniting to cast out devils. Every convert another church gets, helps your church. If there were only two Christians in town it would be hard to get any more."

"Two men had a great number of inmates of the insane asylum out for an airing. I asked the keeper why they didn't go into a huddle, organize and over power the keepers and escape. He laughed and said, 'If they had that much sense they wouldn't be in this place.' They did not have enough sense to get together."

"Think what a vacation we have given the evil devil. Two imps can guard a whole town because 'e' is a wiser one. It is an even sense to get together. Are we spiritually insane? Bughouse?"

Fight and Work
"Oh you are soldiers of the cross and God expects you to do your duty. You'll have to fight every step of the way. Have to do more than blow your nose, wipe your eyes and holler come to Jesus."

A delegation of over fifty members of East Moline churches will attend the meeting tonight.

SAYS MAN PAST 50 IS USELESS TO FELLOWMAN

Columbia U. Professor Tells World What's Matter With It

New York, March 31.—(UP)—Economic stability never will return until every person more than 50 years old is retired. Walter B. Pitkin, psychologist, author and professor at Columbia University, said today.

Pitkin, who is 54 himself, added that "any person past 50 ought to get into a rocket and take off for the moon. He would be better off."

Doddering minds and stupidity are blamed by Pitkin for most of the world's great blunders, in his new book he calls "A Short Introduction to the History of Human Stupidity" to be published April Fools Day.

"Young people should do the ruling," he said. "Young people should be in charge of Wall Street and Washington. The average banker, 50 or past, is incapable of the action that is needed to pull the world out of the present hole. The man over 50 thinks in terms of the past, functions in the manner of the past, and goes blundering along toward the grave. It is a terrible error and must be changed if civilization is to endure."

Ten Classic Blunders

1. The creation of the world.
2. The Irish race's persistence in raising potatoes.
3. Mussolini's dictum to increase the population of Italy.
4. Prohibition.
5. The Civil War.
6. The World War.
7. All other wars.
8. Lord Kitchener's conduct during the World War.
9. Napoleon's Moscow campaign.
10. The deportment of all farm-bones.

"The tragedy of the World War, for example, can be attributed directly to doddering minds," Pitkin said.

"When the war broke out Clemenceau was 73, Hindenburg was 66, Molke was 65, Kitchener was 64, Poch was 63, Joffre was 62, Asquith was 62 and Wilson was 58. Some of these gentlemen were ready for the padded cell in 1914."

"Clemenceau was a wild animal in pants. His mind stopped growing a half a generation before the war. Europe has paid a pretty price for this man—millions of corpses and billions of money."

Many In History
History, according to Professor Pitkin, is filled with such instances of human stupidity, but one doesn't need to go to the history books to find it.

"Look around you," he said, "and see what you see. Look at the cotton farmers. Look at Mussolini. Look at the politicians. Look at the New Yorkers who, year in and year out, vote for Tammany criminals. Look at Henry Ford—whose ideas are certainly a menace to the world. He means well. But he is nothing more than a 100 per cent farmer mechanic. When he begins to think of social problems he makes a terrible botch of it. He is a man born to tinkering with machines, not with people."

Every genius, Pitkin said, is usually stupid in matters outside of the particular accomplishment which makes him a genius.

Some great men, he admitted, were almost wholly free of stupidity. These included Goethe, Leonardo da Vinci, Thomas Aquinas, Disraeli, Francis Bacon, Thomas Jefferson, George Washington and Benjamin Franklin.

"Julius Caesar," Pitkin said, "was a genius and, at the same time, one of the most stupid men of history. He represented all the genius of Rome and all its stupidity. The practice nowadays of comparing America to Rome is justified in this respect. Americans don't give a damn about the future. The resemblance is very striking."

Pool Champions In Defense Of Titles

New Haven, Conn., Mar. 31.—(AP)—National amateur championships in four swimming events prepared to defend their titles today in the opening meet of the National A. A. U. junior championships in Carnegie pool at Yale.

On event, the 1500-meter race which was added this year because of the Olympics, was run off yesterday when Clarence (Buster) Crabbe of the Los Angeles Athletic Club broke his own American record to take first place. Competition in the championships proper was to start today with the selection of titleholders in the 150-yard backstroke, the 100-yard free style, the low board diving and the 300-yard medley swim.

Crabbe's time yesterday was 19:45 3-5 more than 20 second faster than his own earlier record.

The Los Angeles victor will defend his title in the 300-yard medley swim. He set the world's record of 3:35 3-5 in winning this event last year, and has since been clocked in 3:34 2-5. Walter Laufer of the Lake Shore Athletic Club, Chicago, winner of second place last year, and J. Schmeier, University of Michigan, winner of third last year, were regarded as his closest competitors.

George Kojac of the New York Athletic Club, world's record holder in the 150-yard backstroke, and Laufer, present title holder, both are entered for that event.

Kojac's entry threatened another title holder, Albert Schwartz of the Illinois Athletic Club, 100 yard free style champion, faces the New York swimmer when he defends his title in that event.

In the fourth event today Mickey Riley of the Los Angeles Athletic Club was expected to retain his title as low board diving champion.

Illinois President Reprimands Pupils

Champaign, Ill., Mar. 30.—(AP)—President Harry Woodburn Chase today reprimanded 250 freshmen for celebrating their traditional cap-burning rite despite previous refusal of faculty permission.

For many years spring has been the signal for first year men to gather near the stadium and toss their little green caps into a bonfire as a gesture of emancipation from upperclassman rule.

Disorderly conduct of the 1931 brought an announcement that there would be no cap-burning this spring, but 250 loyal freshmen held one anyway two weeks ago. It was more orderly than in the past.

"Any demonstration involving public disorder is altogether too juvenile to have any place in a university community," Dr. Chase said. "Life here is not a game in which students and faculty are arrayed on opposite sides and in which student behavior is motivated by an attempt to put some thing over on somebody. The men who participated in this disturbance the other night did no harm to the faculty. They did harm the standards of the university. May I express the hope that a little added maturity and good sense may cause them to realize not only the character of their offense, but may array them on the side of good citizenship for the future."

Baseball Rules Under Fire Again

Chicago, Mar. 31.—(AP)—Ways and means of eliminating stalling in baseball were considered today by more than 100 coaches as they gathered for their annual meeting.

Several proposals to speed up the game were up for consideration, including restricting the dribble to one bounce in the back court, instituting the "held ball" rule in case the team in possession of the ball fails to try for a goal after five seconds, and giving the referee power to penalize the team that stalls.

Dr. Walter Martwell of Wisconsin had several radical rule changes to suggest, one of which proposes all free throws be made at the end of each half and another the principle of cancellation. Thus, if two teams had the same number of fouls at the end of the half, no free throws would be made. If one team had two more free throws coming, it would be permitted to make just that many at the half or at the end of the game.

Eastern Racing Season To Open

Bowie, Md., Mar. 31.—(AP)—More than 2000 thoroughbreds of the country's foremost racing stables were crunching their oats today waiting for the opening tomorrow at the Bowie track of Maryland's 42 day spring racing season.

A charity day, April 14, has been added to the regular 11 day program of the Bowie meet. From here the horses will move to Havre de Grace and the spring meet will end May 14 at Pimlico.

The $5,000 Inaugural Handicap, a six furlong event for three year olds and up will be a feature on the opening card. A field of ten, it has been predicted by racing officials, will face the barrier.

During the Bowie meet two other $5,000 purses were on the program and one $2,500 event. The big race of the spring meet, however, will be the $50,000 Preakness at Pimlico, May 14.

The Bowie meet closes April 14 and the 15th will be an open date. Havre de Grace dates will be April 16 to 30 and at Pimlico the racing will begin May 2 and continue for two full weeks, closing on the 14th.

Lott Is Latest Victim In Texas

Houston, Tex., Mar. 31.—(AP)—The sort of tennis a professor in Greek has been teaching on the side 25 years at Texas University today had all but stopped the big show in the second annual Houston invitational. George Lott, of Chicago, seeded No. 2, is the latest victim.

Among those on top, the only three players, incidentally, who have reached the singles quarter finals, were Wilmer Allison of Austin and Jimmy Quick of Dallas.

"Grand Old Man" Is At It Again

Chicago, Mar. 31.—(AP)—Alonso Stagg, the "Grand Old Man" of the University of Chicago, is at it again.

The 69-year-old veteran was busy building his forty-first consecutive football team at the Midway today with fresh enthusiasm and optimism.

He thinks he's got the best squad since 1924, when the Maroons won the Big Ten Title.

"We started poorly last season, but by the end of the schedule we were not far behind the best teams in the conference," he beamed as he sent the squad through its first drills yesterday. "We can rely this year on a nucleus of veterans who will play fine football, and we have a group of men who were coming along fast last autumn and were just about ready to become regulars."

The freshman squad was a good one and if their eligibility is satisfactory, we can count on a strong team that will have the good reserves that we have lacked so often in recent seasons."

Stagg will be 70 before the next season rolls around. His birthday falls on August 16.

Sidelights In News In Capital Of United States

By The United Press
Washington, March 31.—(UP)—Rep. Fiorello H. LaGuardia takes time out from his busy fight over the tax bill to call attention to a misstatement in the recent sketch of him carried in this column. It was stated that his wife was his secretary, whereas she was his secretary only until the time he married her in 1929.

In fact, Rep. LaGuardia has been one of the most outspoken opponents of nepotism—the putting of relatives on the government payroll. When his personal political philosophy was criticized on the floor by Rep. Charles L. Martin, Dem. Oregon, the stocky, agile New York Congressman instantly was on his feet with the retort that Martin, who is a retired Army Major General, was drawing two salaries from the government.

Rep. LaGuardia, incidentally, splits his secretarial allowance in three parts. He employs one woman and one man in his office here. He also maintains a congressional secretary in his district in New York to handle official affairs arising there. Much of this business concerns veterans. This secretary is Nicholas Soldaveri, a War veteran, active in American Legion affairs.

There are few better showmen in Congress than LaGuardia. He knows that good causes often lose because of a lack of good showmanship to put them over. Every speech LaGuardia makes is a show in itself—with his gesticulating arms, his dark scowling, his biting, ironic humor, his knack of taking statistics and almost hurling them in the face of his opponents.

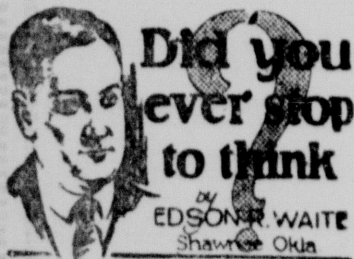

But he is still explaining the unexpected results of one bit of showmanship. Last fall when the official Congressional Directory was being prepared, LaGuardia was asked to turn in his official biography. He simply wrote "LaGuardia" not even using his initials.

The committee member in charge said he couldn't let that go through, and that at least he was going to put in LaGuardia's initials and his address. So he put in the initials and for the address he wrote "Brooklyn, N. Y."

But LaGuardia's district does not touch Brooklyn—it is in upper Manhattan. Shortly he began to get critical letters asking if he was too proud to live in his own district and why he lived in Brooklyn. There was danger of losing many votes, LaGuardia complained, and finally Chairman Stevenson of the committee on Printing rose in the House and officially apologized for the error. But until all copies of that issue of the Congressional Directory pass into oblivion, LaGuardia will continue to be annoyed by references to a Brooklyn residence which he never had.

Incidentally LaGuardia is not a wealthy man and cannot afford, as in the case with many Congressmen, to maintain two fine homes. He and his wife live in a modest apartment here. During congressional recesses they live at 23 East 109th St. New York City. But he stores his furniture when he comes to Washington for the winter.

Though he is one of the hardest fighters in the House, off the floor among friends and in his home he is quiet and unassuming. His hobby is cooking. Spaghetti and salad dressing are his specialties, though he can cook a full meal fit to satisfy the most exacting taste. His chief delight is to be turned loose in the kitchen to make a salad dressing which, apparently he can make out of almost anything except the kitchen stove.

Modern retailers offer you through newspaper advertising the kind of merchandise you want. That is what builds for them a reputation for square dealing, the kind that makes customers come back again and again.

Many cities in the United States and Canada who never thought of a local tourist season should realize the importance of that industry. They usually think of a tourist season which implies a month or so of strange faces, new fads and fashions breaking the placid peacefulness of things local during the greater part of the year. Many towns could increase their incomes by dressing up a little and advertising their charms, and many who have given them the "pass-by" in the yesteryears would stop and stay a while and help them win the favor of more tourists.

More and more many motorists seem to think that all highways are speedways.

An active home-building program means much to the prosperity of any community.

It wouldn't be a bad idea if our politicians would take stock of themselves if they really mean all the things they say.

Nobody knows more about the value of thrift in the home than the woman who has to make the weekly or monthly pay check spread over almost impossible proportions, and she can do it only by careful study of the advertisements in the newspapers. She can find there when and where to buy the best at the most reasonable prices.

THE HEART'S 'CORPORAL'

Every military squad must have a corporal or else its performances are likely to be uncoordinated and inefficient.

The heart, consisting, as it does, of four separate chambers, and operating in a rhythmic manner, must and does have its corporal.

This is a bundle of special tissue called the "pace maker," which begins in the right upper chamber and spreads throughout the rest of the heart.

The impulse to contract arises in the upper portion of the "pace maker" and is communicated to the rest of the heart structure in such a manner that the workings of the various parts of the heart are rhythmically and efficiently performed.

Sometimes disease involves and the rhythmicity of the heart's function is destroyed. The corporal is missing and the squad is disorganized.

The auricles, that is, the upper chambers of the heart, may then contract several times for each time the ventricles or the lower chambers contract.

Or perhaps a ratio of one to two or three may be established between the contractions of the upper and lower chambers.

Such a condition is spoken of as partial or complete heart block.

Life is not immediately threatened but, on the other hand, the heart is subjected to an undue strain.

The condition of heart block is come depends upon the extent of the injury the "pace maker" has suffered and the nature of the disease attacking it.

Nor is heart block the only manifestation of a diseased or destroyed "pace maker."

The heart may run riot either

How Soil Has Shaped Lives Of Human Beings

Washington, D. C.—"The character of the soil—the few inches or few feet of ground that form the outer skin of the earth—has very largely molded the way of life of millions of people throughout the world," says a bulletin from the Washington, D. C. headquarters of the National Geographic Society.

"Other factors, such as moisture and temperature, are important in plant growth," continues the bulletin, "but the fundamental factor is the soil itself, the medium in which roots can anchor themselves, and from which they can draw their food supplies."

Why Chinese Eat Wheat
"The great loess region of north China is a striking example of the effect of soil on customs. This light loam, deposited by the wind, is easily drained, and is too well supplied with moisture. It dictates the growth of wheat and other hardy grains instead of rice. The northern Chinese, therefore, are non-rice eating folk. Their dry soil also decreases the raising of livestock; so it is here that China has its greatest concentration of sheep and cattle. The loess soil of China even affects the type of dwelling over a large area. The deep, compacted soil forms sheer bluffs that are as stable as soft rock. In the faces of these bluffs rooms are hollowed out and fitted with doors and windows. Hundreds of thousands of Chinese make their homes in these half-subterranean abodes."

"The lower Yangtze valley forms a marked contrast to the loess region. With its basins of rich alluvial soil, which responds well to wet culture, it is the center of China's rice production. In this region the soil condition has brought about dependence almost exclusively on rice as a vegetable food, the practice of flood irrigation, and the raising of poultry rather than large farm animals."

"In the United States the great 'corn belt' near the center of the country has been marked out by deep, easily-penetrated soil, although temperature and moisture conditions also are important factors in making this the greatest maize producing region of the world. Corn is an excellent food for animals. It is largely because of its soil and temperature, therefore, that this region has become the great cattle-fattening and hog-raising section of the United States.

Types Depend On Soil

"Two of man's chief luxuries, tobacco and wine, are more strongly affected by soil differences than almost any other agricultural products. In the United States cigar leaf tobacco is grown best on certain soils of the Connecticut valley, New York, Pennsylvania, Ohio, and Wisconsin. The Burley types grow on the blue-grass soils of Kentucky and adjoining states to the north; and the bright tobaccos used in cigarettes, on the light soils of the Carolinas and nearby Virginia."

"The most famous Cuban tobacco, which has at times sold as high as $20 a pound, can be grown only on soil in about 25 square miles. Two other restricted areas produce the second and third most famous Cuban tobaccos. On special soils in Macedonia and Asia Minor are grown the celebrated Turkish tobaccos, with flavors and aromas that can not be duplicated elsewhere."

"Each of the noted wines of France owes its special character to the soil on which the grapes grow. In some cases very small areas are utilized—little 'islands' of outcropping soil. The same grapes, grown on land between the soil patches will produce a wine wholly different from that made from the 'island' grapes."

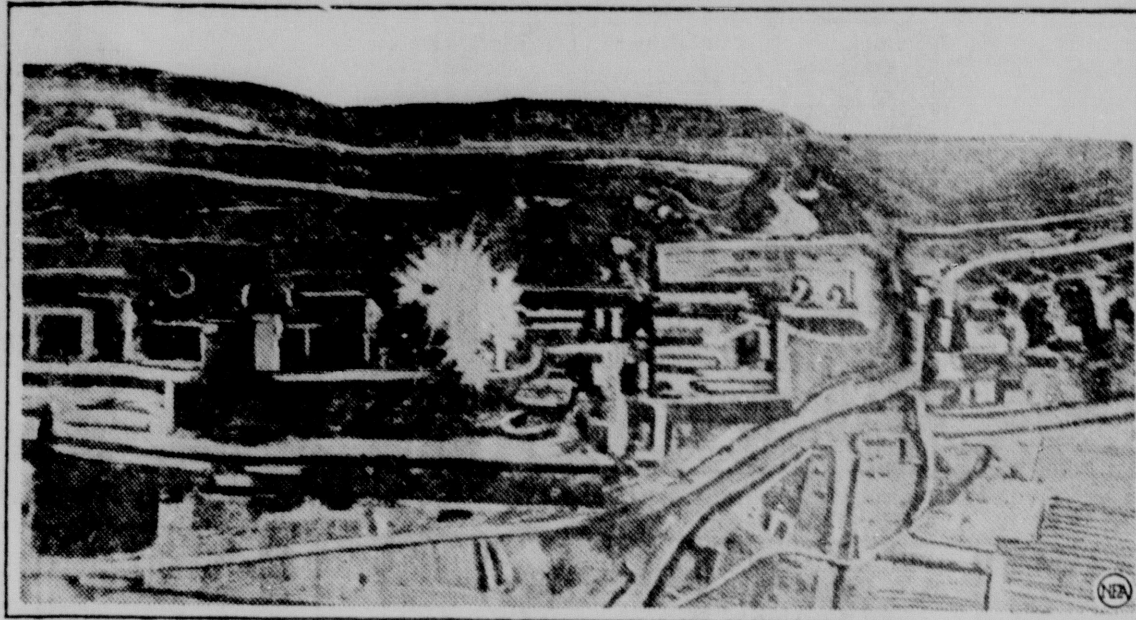

What Soil Is Made Of
"This priceless soil layer, on which all of the world's land vegetation and land animals are dependent, is nothing more than broken up bits of rock into which the decayed remains of vegetable and animal forms have been mixed. Chemically, there are three broad types of soil: alkaline, neutral, and acid. It is in accordance with their physical characteristics, however, that soils are usually classified."

"Sand is the soil of coarsest particles. Through it water drains easily, little being imprisoned, and not much mineral matter goes into solution from its hard grains. Pure sand, therefore, does not make a satisfactory soil for growing crops."

"At the other end of the scale physically, is clay. Its particles are so fine that they are not found in a separate state, but stick together with water in large groups. Whereas pure sand is too 'light' for satisfactory crop production, pure clay is too 'heavy'."

"Between sand and clay lies the wide range of useful soils, made up of particles smaller than those of sand and larger than those of

How Bombs Smashed Woosung Forts

Here is a remarkable picture taken from an airplane high over the Woosung forts, guarding Shanghai's river approach, which shows a bomb dropped from a Japanese army plane just as it exploded on striking the fortifications. Bombs from planes and shells from naval vessels at anchor off Shanghai were rained on the fort, which was bravely defended by the Chinese throughout the struggle and never surrendered. China is demanding heavy damages in the course of peace negotiations.

clay; or else of varying proportions of sand and clay, with the addition in most cases of mixtures of lime, other mineral salts, and decayed vegetable matter. A soil composed of particles approximately midway in size between sand and clay is known as loam. As loams grade upward to sands, they are called sandy loams and loamy sands; as they grade downward, they are called clayey loams and loamy clays. When the percentage of any additional soil ingredient is very high, it alters the appearance and nature of the soil, and often gives it a distinctive name. Thus there are chalky soils, containing much lime, and muck and peat soils, rich in humus or material of vegetable origin.

"The soil as the feeding ground of plant roots, is in truth much more than a mere group of fragments of rock and humus. It consists of soil 'crumbs' composed of groups of microscopic particles; the obvious spaces between the crumbs; the unseen spaces within them the water, air, and other gases that circulate between the crumbs; and are imprisoned in them; minerals in solution, and the bacteria and microscopic animal life that exist underground. It is from the mineral solutions that surround and permeate the soil crumbs that the tiny rootlets draw most of their nourishment."

The good old name of Smith is said to be a British family name meaning an iron worker or smith.

COMPTON NEWS

By Leslie G. Archer

COMPTON — Twenty-six rural schools including Compton's school district will be represented in the northern Illinois and national district spelling bee that will be held at the Compton high school on April 2nd, at 10:00. School districts that are included in Compton district are 119, 120, 121, 122, 123, 124, 125, 126, 127, 128, 129, 130, 131, 132, 142, 143, 144, 145, 146, 147, 149, 150, 151, 153, 154, 161.

Prof. D. C. Thompson of the Compton high school is chairman for this district and has announced that due to the fact that the county contest will be written, his district will also be written. A distinctive pin will be given the winner of this district contest. The words will be chosen from the common word speller.

Mrs. Mildred Olson has been named pronounced with Mrs. R. J. Richardson and Mrs. Ruth M. Holdren, judges. Alta Cook, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. H. F. Cook of the eighth grade will represent district No. 128 (Compton) in the spelling bee Saturday.

Mr. and Mrs. R. J. Richardson held a birthday dinner in the honor of Delos Butler and their son Hugh, second birthday. The guests included immediate relatives, Mr. and Mrs. Delos Butler, Mr. and Mrs. Arthur VanCampen, and daughter Jane; Mr. and Mrs. Ralph P. Kettlev, children, June, Dorothy and Delos; Mr. and Mrs. R. G. Fuller and daughter Jo Ann, and Mrs. Josephine Merriman of Paw Paw.

Raymond Guinness and son John Elliott of Forrest Park visited over Easter Sunday here with his mother, Mrs. Nellie Sweet.

Mrs. Evelyn Gilmore is spending the next few days here at her home from her studies at Rockford College, Rockford.

Mrs. Mae Bradshaw left early this week for Oswego where she will visit some time with Mr. and Mrs. J. P. Betz. Mrs. Bradshaw will also visit with her son, Max Bradshaw at Madison, Wis., before returning to her home here late in April.

A baby boy was born to Mr. and Mrs. Forrest Rosenkrans of Paw Paw, at the home of Mrs. Rosenkrans' parents, Mr. and Mrs. J. E. Montavon on Monday. Mrs. Charles Carnahan is caring for the mother and baby.

Vivian Swope, who has been at the local hospital for the past month is much improved at this writing.

Dr. C. G. Pool motored to Ottawa during the past week with two patients where they took X-ray treatments. Dr. Pool also took a deep X-ray treatment for his left hand, that was injured in an auto accident at Chicago late last fall.

Mrs. Roy Miller has been confined to her home for the past week due to illness.

Mayor H. M. Chaon and Dr. C. G. Pool spent Friday in Dixon on business.

Beatrice Chaon, oldest daughter of Mr. and Mrs. H. M. Chaon is under quarantine at her home with the chicken pox.

Mr. and Mrs. B. W. Ulch and Mr. and Mrs. William A. Florschuetz visited during the past week with their sisters, Mrs. Roland Gatten and Mrs. Clara Zaph at Marseilles.

Mr. and Mrs. C. L. Holdren entertained a number of the family to a Easter dinner last Sunday. Those present were Mr. and Mrs.

Walter Cook, Mr. and Mrs. O. Morehouse of Mendota, Mr. and Mrs. Grover Carnahan, and son Clifton, Mr. and Mrs. Ed. L. Holdren.

Mrs. William Florschuetz underwent a minor surgical operation Sunday afternoon at the Compton hospital. A small splinter of wood was removed from her hand.

The Compton Oilers baseball club are starting the season, by holding a benefit dance at the Compton opera house on Friday evening, April 1st. Good music and a delicious lunch has been arranged for the guests.

Baby Girl Rides Tornado; Found Miles From Home

Lloyd Butler, 33, farmer living near Birmingham, Ala., was fighting to keep the door closed when the tornado that devastated a wide stretch through four southern states, swooped out of the south. His wife, holding Jewel, 22-months-old baby, with their two small daughters clinging to her skirts, was behind. Then the house collapsed. That's the last thing Butler remembers. Puzzled farmers found Jewel nearly 10 miles away. They named her the "orphan of the storm." But a relative recognized the baby and got word to the parents who were in the hospital. The two other daughters were killed. How Jewel rode the storm remains a mystery. Picture shows Jewel, battered but cheerful, with the Butlers. They were unable to attend funeral services for the two girls.

Machines That Are Almost Human

By E. C. TAYLOR

The Thought Transmitter

DO YOU believe in mental telegraphy? In the power of one individual to transfer his thoughts to the brain of another without speaking the words?

Science has approached such a phenomenon. A device has been perfected that enables speech, not thought, to be projected into a chosen brain by the mere pointing of a finger. Only the person selected to hear it can hear the speech. In a crowded room no one else can hear what the speaker has to impart to his chosen hearer.

Scientists call the device a thought transmitter, however, since it is the speaker's thoughts that are transmitted, although they are put into the form of words before they are conveyed to the other person.

In any vast crowd, enveloped by an immense silence, it is possible for an operator of the electrostatic projection machine to put words into the mind of a chosen subject merely by grasping the handle of the machine and pointing his finger at the ear of the subject.

The device has been demonstrated to scientists and others through the country by Sergius P. Grace, assistant vice president of the Bell Telephone Laboratories. His uncanny device confounded gatherings of electrical engineers and industrial leaders in New York and Chicago.

At the New York demonstration, Doctor Grace hooked up the machine, grasped a terminal and pointed a forefinger at the subject's ear. The latter heard a speech stressing the fact that this was merely a demonstration. No one else in the room heard the speech.

In Chicago, Doctor Grace, before 1,000 members of the Illinois Manufacturers' association, spoke into a telephone transmitter, and by means of an amplifier what he said could be heard all over the room. While he was speaking a part of the current used was stored in a device to keep radio conversations secret also was demonstrated by Doctor Grace. Scientists are working to perfect that machine, for use when radio telephone becomes more popular, and as an instrument of communication in time of war.

The device "scrambles" any speech sent over the radio apparatus. This "scrambled" speech is ordinary speech with the frequencies, or tones, reversed, so that the high frequencies become low and the low frequencies become high. In other words, the low tones become high and the high tones of one's speech become low when "scrambled" by the device.

Another newly invented device attached to the radio revolving apparatus at the other end "unscrambles" the reversed speech and it is heard in the form in which it originally was spoken.

The Man Hunters

BY MABEL McELLIOTT

BEGIN HERE TODAY

SUSAN CAREY is learning stenography in a Chicago business school. Reprimanded one day for an error, she looks up to see ROBERT DUNBAR, another student, staring at her. She has heard he is the heir to the Dunbar fortune and wonders why he is learning stenography. That night she goes to a party at the home of ROSE WILTON one of her friends, expecting to have a miserable time since she has no escort and knows few of the guests. A dark young man named BEN LAMPHAM shows her attention and asks her home. Susan says goodnight to him hurriedly because she doesn't want ALICE JESSIE, with whom she lives, to rush out and scold her for dallying.

NOW GO ON WITH THE STORY CHAPTER II

Oh, Lordy, Lordy, how Susan did hate getting up! She yawned deeply, burrowing her head under the covers and trying to shut out the sound of Aunt Jessie's nasal call: "Susan! Susan! Get up this very minute. Breakfast's getting cold."

Shuddering, blinking at the light, the girl swung her feet over the side of the big bed which creaked in sympathy. Its springs were old and sagging. She stood in the middle of the little room with its bravely painted dresser and white ruffled curtains. She was slim and youthfully curved, exquisite in her thin cotton night gown, lit from many washings.

"Susan!"

"Coming!"

Aunt Jessie was grumbling as Susan came into the kitchen. She continued to grumble as she poured coffee from the spout of the old blue enamel pot and slapped thick slices of bread on the toaster. Susan liked this toast but Aunt Jessie didn't believe in catering to young girls.

"No egg for me, thanks," Susan murmured.

Aunt Jessie began to scold with fresh vigor. "You girls nowadays—never know when you're well off—string bean shapes—no vitality!" Susan had heard it all so many times before that she scarcely listened.

"You're not hearing a word I'm saying," crumbled Aunt Jessie. "Can't think what gets into you these days. I said it 10 past 8 and you'll be late again if you don't run for the car."

SUSAN came out of her daze and rushed down the hall and lunged on her last year's car. It wasn't at all like the one in the shop windows but Susan couldn't help that. Her glowing gray eyes, richly curling hair, and the color that came and went fitfully in her heart-shaped face triumphed over the handicap of last year's millinery.

She hurried back into the kitchen to say goodby to Aunt Jessie. The dishwasher was making an obnoxious noise in the cupboard as Aunt Jessie furiously turned on faucets and swirled an aged dish-mop.

She peeked at Susan's check and muttered: "You'll be late, sure you're born. Never did see such a sleepyhead. You take after your mother's folks, that way."

She was still grumbling as Susan ran down the back stairs to take the short cut to the corner where she stashed the surface car. The girl sighed clinging to a strap. Why was Aunt Jessie such a groucher? She loved her—Susan knew that. Hadn't she nursed her through diphtheria during her first year in high school? Hadn't she brought her back to life when practically everybody had given her up for dead? Oh, Susan knew Aunt Jessie really cared for her but she had such a queer way of showing it. That, thought Susan shrewdly, was Aunt Jessie's generation. Uncompromising, hard on others as well as themselves. They couldn't help it. "I was raised right and I'm going to see you are the same," Aunt Jessie often said grimly when the young girl complained of strictures.

"Going to lunch?" he inquired.

"Raised right!" meant going to bed early and rising early; having very little fun, made-over clothes, putting money in the bank, quoting "handsome is as handsome does" and thinking the devil lurked in a wingglass. Well, maybe they were right but Susan thought there must be more in life than just that. She hoped so, anyway.

Her heart sank when she thought of the day before her and she flipped the pages of her book as she awaited and jerked to the uncertain rhythm of the street car's progress. "Up in front there, up in front," droned the conductor as more and more passengers crowded in at every corner.

It promised to be a warm day. The freshness of early morning was vanishing as they neared the downtown district. The odors of asphalt under sun, of gasoline fumes, of human bodies and cheap scents mingled together. Susan hated it.

She wondered how that fastidious looking young man, Robert Dunbar, looked into town. Probably on a comfortable suburban train with room enough to stretch his long legs and read his morning newspaper. She envied him. He seemed to be a visitor from another sphere with his fine linen, his well fitting lounge suits.

At one of the downtown corners amid a clatter of street car bells and whine of hastily applied brakes, she alighted and began swiftly to walk east. It seemed as if she were alive and young this unexpected, death of Oscar Eicholtz. The deceased, born March 26, 1866 at Biglerville, Pa., was the son of Jonas B. Eicholtz who had moved his family to Nachusa from Pennsylvania and settled on a farm south of town when Oscar was yet a child. On this farm Oscar, as he was always affectionally called, grew to manhood and reared his family. At twenty-one years of age he married Miss Cora Parker also of Nachusa on Nov. 15, 1887. Their marriage proved a companionship of enduring affection. Of their two children, Guy and Erma E., their daughter, preceded the father in death by almost eleven years. In 1910 Mr. Eicholtz retired from the farm and lived a quiet life within the village. Here he made many devoted friends by his integrity, sociable nature and sympathetic disposition. For the past four years he had a hard struggle in his fight for life, health and strength. Toward the last he suffered greatly, and when the end came he passed through the gate of death with a clear mind and a ready will. He leaves to cherish his memory the widow, and son Guy, now living in Chicago; and a grandson, Robert Alden Anderson, also of Chicago.

The funeral service was conducted at St. Paul's Lutheran church of which the deceased had been an honored member since 1897. Interment was made in the near by Emmert Cemetery. The community hereby extends its sincere sympathy to the bereaved whose deep sorrow it is moved to share.

STUDENTS SEEK CONGRESS HELP IN MINE PROBE

Tell Experiences In Kentucky: Deride Officials There

Washington, March 30.—(UP)—The 81 college students ejected from Kentucky when they tried to investigate coal mining conditions there are expected here tomorrow morning in an effort to obtain congressional action on an investigation.

Their program includes testimony before members of Congress as to their treatment in Kentucky. A congressional committee heard testimony from members of the Allan Tubb, Wallace Frank and Malcolm Cowley group, who likewise were ejected from Kentucky several weeks ago.

The students also will issue a resolution calling on all teachers and students in the United States to support them in an effort to bring about a federal investigation in "the war area."

Members of the faculty of Columbia University yesterday sent a telegram to Senator Robert La Follette, chairman of the Senate committee on Manufactures, urging a federal investigation of Barlow and Bell counties in Kentucky.

Relate Experience
The four students who made a special trip into the Kentucky mining region after the election of the group reported on route here of their experiences in "the war area." These four—Herbert Robbins of Harvard, Elmer Curtis of Columbia, Margaret Bailey of New York University and Willard Spence of Union Theological Seminary, said Wilbur B. Smith County Attorney of Bell county, greeted them in red silk pajamas with trimmings in white.

After Smith had questioned them later at the courthouse, they said, he told them he would have them go to church. C. K. Calvert then escorted them to his office, where he gave them a talk on condition in the mines. Miss Curtis said that while they were there, Smith entered in the full dress uniform of a Knight Templar. He had on a blue uniform trimmed with gold lace. He was wearing shiny boots and had a long white plume in his cocked hat, a sword at his side, he waved the sword, they declared.

The students gave Smith the nickname, "Little Hitler."

OTHERS PLAN TRIP
Frankfort, Ky., March 30.—(AP)—As two busloads of eastern students left the state after protesting to Gov. Ruby Laffoon their rejection from the southeastern Kentucky coal fields, another group from an Arkansas labor college announced plans to visit the mine areas.

Lucian Koch, head of Commonwealth College at Mena, Ark., said he and Harold Coy, instructor of L. Grullon, New York newspaperman and Sam Sandburg and Isaac Greenburg, students, would take supplies to Kentucky miners.

Koch announced they would leave Mena today and come to Frankfort to ask Governor Laffoon for protection before proceeding to Bell and Harlan counties. County Attorney W. B. Smith has announced Bell county officials will take no notice of future student invasions, leaving them to citizens to handle.

Mr. and Mrs. L. L. Crouten left on Monday for their home in Denver, Colo. They were many of their friends to bid them farewell and they left in a shower of rice. Mrs. Crouten's marriage was a complete surprise to her friends of the community and their parting greeting was indicative of the warmth of their good wishes following the couple.

Miss Hilda McIntosh of Joliet, spent the Easter holidays with Mr. and Mrs. William Hunt.

Sunday guests at the home of Supervisor and Mrs. Perley Cross were: Mr. and Mrs. Harold Cross, Miss Mabel Stanley and mother of Dixon and Mrs. Johnson and children of Franklin Grove.

Irvin Gocken who lives on the E. A. Clover farm has been quite ill.

Mr. and Mrs. John Drummond and Mrs. Susan Williams were guests at the home of Rev. and Mrs. Eldred Marsh of Oregon on Sunday.

The high school inspector for the state spent a day in Ashton this week.

Relatives and friends of the community learned of the death of Ada, 15-year-old daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Archie Johnson, formerly of this community the past week. Her death occurred in the Richmond, Va., hospital where she and her sister, Madeline had been ill of a malignant sore throat. Mrs. Sarah Olive Acker, who celebrated her 89th birthday on January 6, is very ill at her home in Washington Grove. Mrs. Acker is the oldest member of the Drummond family, pioneer family of the community, now living in this locality. She is the granddaughter of Mr. and Mrs. Andrew Drummond, who settled in Washington Grove in 1838.

Mr. and Mrs. Ray Hodge were hosts to the Grove card club on Saturday evening. Fred Hardesty made high score.

Mrs. William Grover attended the funeral services at the Henry home at Franklin Grove on Monday. Mr. Henry was a relative of Mrs. Grover.

Mrs. E. A. Clover and daughter, Miss Jessie were Rockford callers on Saturday.

The annual meeting of the Presbyterian church is scheduled for Thursday evening, March 31. Dennis Collins, candidate for Republican nomination for Representative of the 35th district, was greeting Ashton folks on Saturday.

Mr. and Mrs. Young and children of Preport and Mr. and Mrs. Rempein of Evanston, were guests at the home of their parents, Mr. and Mrs. Griffith over Easter.

Mrs. H. O. Canfield has been ill at her home the past two weeks. Edward Wolfe, who is attending Berchman's seminary at Marion, Iowa, spent Easter holidays with home folks.

Contestants for honors in the literary contest to be held at DeKalb April 2 are:

Orations, Darrell Remick—"The Old Order Changeth" Gilkinson Janet Ogil—"The American Ideal" Melone.

Humorous Declamation—"The Abandoned Elopement" Lincoln Lia Klingberg—"Blind Dates," Lausdale.

Dramatic Declamations—"The Wheels of Time" Barclay.

Owen Hamel, student at the University of Illinois, was a guest of his parents for the Easter holidays.

Mrs. R. Y. Tilton and son Marion of Oregon, will spend Sunday with Mr. and Mrs. George Mos-teller of Chicago.

The town hall has been redecorated, the work having been done by Marshal Bowers and Milford Wisman.

Notices for school elections to be held April 15 dot the landscape, as do many countryside trees which are placarded with solicitations for votes.

Kidnaped Girl Is Party To The Plot

Los Angeles, March 30.—(AP)—Police said today they had solved a "kidnaping" mystery in which a 19-year-old girl voluntarily submitted to abduction to aid in extorting money from her father so she and her sweetheart could be married.

Ben Clifford, 23, was arrested as he tried to collect $900 in ransom money from Albert Bray, well-to-do real estate owner, for the return of his daughter Rita, who disappeared Friday.

In a room in a downtown hotel police said, they found Miss Bray quietly talking with Arthur Lake, 24, a friend of long standing.

The girl and the two men were placed in jail. Detectives later announced all three had confessed they plotted to obtain money so that Miss Bray and Lake could be married. Clifford, it was explained, assisted merely as a friend.

KING CUTS OWN INCOME
Belgrade.—(UP)—In line with wage and salary cuts in all government branches in the general economy campaign, King Alexander's income also has been cut. He will receive $70,000 less this year than ever before. The reduction was at his own suggestion.

TOO WONDERFUL FOR WORDS!

HIS

..... and THE masterpiece in a year of great pictures.

GEORGE FORMAN
THE MAN WHO PLAYED GOD

Words cannot add to its greatness. Years cannot dim its glory. There's an empty spot in your heart where the memory of this production will find a permanent resting place.

Hundreds will see it twice—Plan now to see it at least once—The years might never bring a greater hit.

Joe Says: "Hey Gang C'Mon Over!"
TOMORROW and SATURDAY

Your old friend Joe will be in town. Wait'll you see me as a lovestruck fire-fighter and baseball player... A panic at the flames and a riot with the dames! I save 'em and enslave 'em! Boy I'm so funny I wake up in the middle of the night just to laugh at myself—And believe me I'll have the whole town rolling in the isles with laughter.

JOE E. BROWN in
"FIREMAN SAVE MY CHILD"

You'll know me, I'll be wearing red pajamas—Beautiful women will swoon, strong men will grow weak, children shout with glee—The whole town will go wild with joy.

For A Cough That Hangs On

A Speedy End—Or Money Back

Say goodbye to that harsh, rasping cough that racks your whole body and keeps you (and the neighbors) awake night after night.

Two doses of Broncholine Emulsion will probably end it. A whole bottle certainly will—or you can have your money back.

Broncholine Emulsion is no sugary sedative syrup. It's a REAL cough medicine. It contains no chloroform, narcotics, nor habit-forming drugs of any kind. Nothing to upset your stomach—nothing to give you the drug habit. $1.19. MUST stop your cough or money back. Ford-Hopkins guarantees it.
